BIG GERMAN ATTACK IN BELGIUM

RUMANIA AND RUSSIA IN PEACE PACT

4 FLAMERS TAKEN BY U. S. BOYS IN RAID

Liquid Fire Projectors Abandoned by Huns in Front of Our Trenches

By HENRY G. WALES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, March 9. — Four liquid fire projectors used by the Germans in their attack against the American front north of Toul a few nights ago were captured by the Americans. This, and further details about the attack, are now allowed to be made public by the censor.

Now that they have used liquid flames, the Germans have tried out all of their "war horrors" against the Americans.

The four projectors taken by the Americans had been abandoned by the Germans in "No man's Land."

The Germans reached the American barbed wire and pointed the nozzles toward the trenches. As the Germans were turning on the flames they were sighted by an American patrol, which opened fire. Sharpshooters in the American trenches joined in the firing.

GERMANS BREAK AND FLEE.

The German party broke and fled, leaving behind their cumbersome apparatus. The projectors had been strapped to the backs of the soldiers.

The projectors were sighted when day dawned, but the machine-gun fire prevented the Americans from bringing them in for several hours. The capture were filmed as they carried in the flame throwers.

Details are forthcoming also about the heroic action of an American sentry who routed a patrol of 20 Germans, killing a sergeant on Tuesday morning. The body was found in an American trench.

German wire-cutters, who may have been trying to pave the way for another raid, cut through the entanglements, finding the trench empty.

LEADER IS SLAIN.

The American sentry, who was nearby, waited until five Germans were in the trench and then opened fire. The leader of the Germans fell and the sentry continud shooting at the fleeing quartet.

Snipers opened fire upon the other Germans standing by the barbed wire and it is certain that some were wounded, as blood stains were found.

The enemy left behind a stretcher, four rifles, bombs, wire cutters and some flame projectors.

Torpedoes were dropped from an airplane, making huge craters in the ground.

March winds are drying up the mud on the American front.

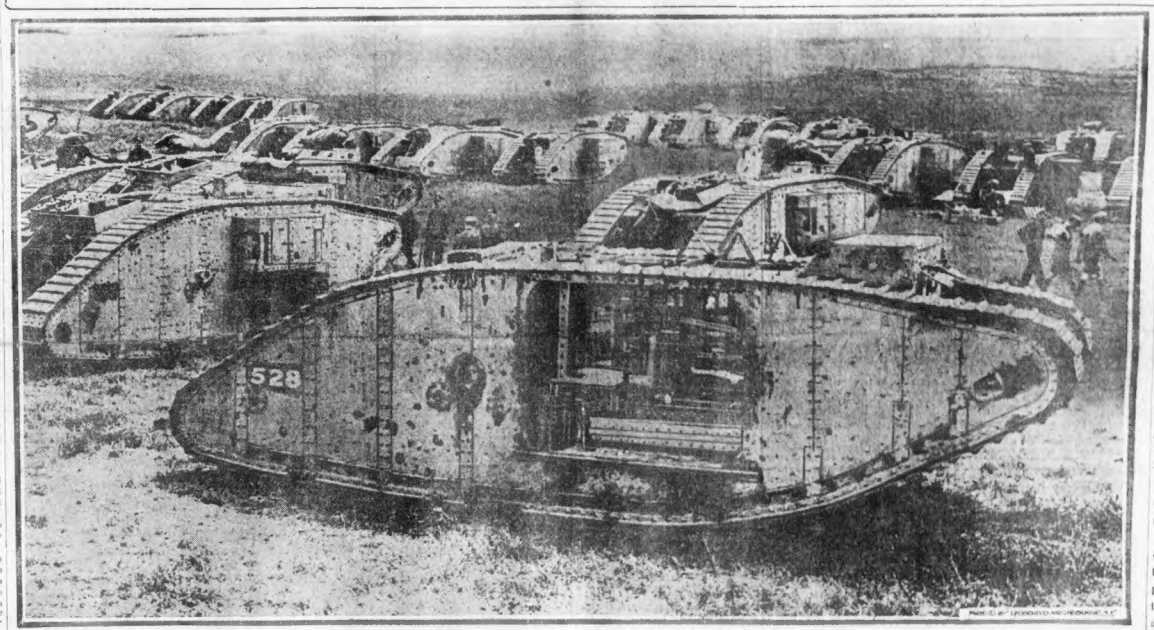
It is reported that a German observation balloon was shot down in flames.

The men were thrilled by the sight of a sky battle between a French airman and a German. When last seen the German biplane was being driven down.

CONDITION OF MEYER TODAY VERY GRAVE

George von L. Meyer, former Secretary of the Navy, is in an extremely low condition today, according to Dr. Henry Jackson, his attending physician. The former secretary and diplomat is said to have been failing for some days, and his recovery is believed to be impossible. He is suffering from a tumor on the liver.

SQUADRON OF BRITISH TANKS READY FOR DRIVE PROVE TRUTH THAT "WAR IS HELL"



General Sherman said: "War is hell!" By the same token, here is a yardful of "hell on wheels." It takes a world war to produce such a parking scene as this—a British tank-drome on the western front. One may count in the picture a score of British tanks, great monsters of destruction which can crush their way through buildings, over walls, up hill and down dale, belching death and destruction as they arive resistlessly on. This is one of the remarkable photographs produced in this war. The tanks are Mars' own chariots, gigantic as prehistoric beasts, but outdoing in their construction and power the dreams even of Jules Verne. Notice the number on the one in the foreground. It shows that this group of tanks comprises only a small part of the allies' tank fleet. This is only a squadron, mighty as it is. Through the open side of the foremost tank it is possible to see the fearful interior of the creature, its iron vitals which form both its motive and destructive powers. The picture, an official British war photograph, is impressive with the tanks only "at rest." The awful spectacle of these war monsters advancing in death-dealing attack may be imagined.

LATEST FROM RUSSIA

Formal announcement from Petrograd that Leon Trotzky, foreign minister in the Bolsheviki government, has been forced to resign as a result of the Russian split over Germany's peace terms was the most important news from Russia today. Trotzky was the leader of the movement which resulted in the overthrow of Kerensky.

Other news on the Russian and Siberian situation was:

1—German warships sink a number of Russian transports after a fight in the Baltic sea.

2—Swedish advices say a majority of the provincial soviets to be presented at the Moscow conference Tuesday favor continuation of the war against the Central Powers.

3—London cables say there is evidence of a plan by Germany to Germanize Siberia and that an army of prisoners held there has been organized for the purpose.

4—Japan is reported as greatly alarmed at the Kaiser's activities in Siberia.

TROTZKY QUITS IN DISPUTE ON PEACE

Petrograd, March 9.—Formal announcement was made by Leon Trotzky during a session of the Central Soviet of Peoples Commissaries that he had resigned as Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Bolshevik government. This follows the split over acceptance of the German peace between Trotzky and Nicolai Lenine, Premier of the Bolshevik government.

The Bolsheviki have sent forth an official wireless message directing that the representatives of the Russian government at Stockholm have no dealings whatsoever with the representatives of the majority Socialist party of Germany. The majority socialists of Germany are termed traitors to the working classes.

It is asserted to several of the newspapers that four thousand Japanese troops were landed at Vladivostok some weeks ago, but that they were intended merely to safeguard Japanese property at the Russian Pacific port.

LITHUANIANS IN U. S. WARNED OF 'WORKERS'

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—The Lithuanian Workers' Council is contrasted by men only recently under suspicion or the government because of interference against the draft law and conduct of the war, according to a statement issued by the Lithuanian National Council today.

"It is the Lithuanian Workers' Council, mouthpiece of German socialism, which desires to see Lithuania chained to the Russian dervish and sink in the unmarked sea of anarchy, to be rescued and ensnared by the pirates of Potsdam," the statement continues. "It is to prevent this result that the council seeks to instill its insidious doctrines into the minds of 700,000 Lithuanian inhabitants of the United States. It is against this contemptible propaganda which the Lithuanian National Council is fighting."

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS TO CLOTHE SUFFERERS

New York, March 9.—Christian Scientists here are preparing to make large shipments of garments to women and children in France, Italy, Serbia and Belgium. GERMAN AIR FLEET RAIDS PARIS

Bombs Dropped on the French Capital; Number Are Reported Killed

Amsterdam, March 9.—A treaty of peace has been effected between Rumania and Russia, according to information received here today.

Rumania and the Bolshevik government have long been at loggerheads. The Petrograd government accused the Rumanians of giving aid to the counter revolutionaires in Southern Russia.

Paris, March 9.—A group of German bombing airplanes raided Paris early today.

Bombs were dropped in several portions of the Metropolitan district and a number of people were killed, according to incomplete reports thus far at hand.

Several buildings were damaged.

By International News Service.

London, March 9.—Following an all day bombardment the Germans attacked the British on a mile front in Belgium, but the attack was repulsed at all except one point, the War Office announced today.

The assault, which was supported by a heavy bombardment, was unclerstood in the sectors of Poelderhoek and the Ypres-Menin road.

It was carried out with the utmost determination, but everywhere the Germans were beaten back, save in the neighborhood of Poelderhoek, where they succeeded in entering an advanced position, over a front of about one yards.

Later on the night the British delivered a powerful counter attack, driving the Germans from their captured advance.

A German raid in the neighborhood of Neuve Chappelle was repulsed, in the same district, near Fleurbaix, the British made successful raids.

FIND SLEEPING BABY IN STREET CAR STATION

A five months' old baby boy, fat and healthy was found sleeping peacefully in the street railway waiting room, near the Newton Hospital on Washington street, Newton. The child was found by Charles Duffy, an attendant at the hospital, who was on his way home when he noticed a light in the waiting room. The little boy was wrapped in expensive clothing and a hot water bottle had been placed close to its body. As the water in the bottle was cold it is believed the baby had been there some time.

TEUTON PRISONERS ARE ORGANIZED TO GERMANIZE SIBERIA

JAPANESE ALARMED AT REPORTED MENACE TO PACIFIC

the larose of a very real German scare. Confidential advices reaching diplomatic circles today made this very plain.

Tokio has information which is accepted there as in every way authentic that the German prisoners in Siberia already have been reorganized and armed. Through the connivance of the Bolsheviki authorities these men have been able to get enormous supplies from Austrian and German sources, these advices set forth, and they now constitute a real menace to the control of the Pacific by the Japanese and the entente.

As a result of the situation it is believed that Japan will renew her request to the United States to assent to a Japanese military expedition into Siberia. It is said such a renewal has not already been made.

The White House and State Department maintained complete silence today to discuss the contents of the message received from Ambassador Morris Cook yesterday. Nothing has been done is to admit that the message had been received. Some officials denied that it dealt with the Siberian situation, but this denial, of course, was of the diplomatic kind to which Washington is now fully accustomed.

That the entente is completely convinced of the necessity of action by Japan is best shown by the statement of Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade and of Andrew Bonar Law.

Lord Robert fairly characterized the Siberian situation as a menace and further charged that a Prussian general had been sent to Petrograd to assume command of the liberated and organized German prisoners.

In diplomatic circles here today it was assumed that London, Paris and Rome all have renewed their persuasion to have the United States accept their views of the Japanese-Siberian situation.

GUIDED BY FRANCIS.

There is little likelihood of any change of policy by the United States. President Wilson today is shaping his course on the recommendations of Ambassador David R. Francis. Mr. Francis does not believe that Germany can completely accomplish her aims. When the Russian delegates meet in Moscow next Tuesday to ratify the German-imposed peace, the Ambassador believes that another government, which will be more truly native of Russia, will be formed and that it will repudiate such action. Mr. Francis has made it very plain to the Russians that the United States is their disinterested friend and that it will be the best policy possible to "Save free Russia to the republic."

Naturally, should Ambassador Francis see any reason for any foreign interference in Siberia, he will so inform the President, and the course of the United States will then be shaped accordingly. But until the ambassador does believe that such action is necessary the United States will maintain its present position of refusing to assent to any interference with Russia's own affairs.

Germany Now Claims Free Trade Route to Persia and Afghanistan

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, March 9.—An indication of Germany's program of activities in the east was seen today in the announcement by the semi-official Wolff Bureau that the German government has now "acquired a free route by way of Russia to Persia and Afghanistan."

This announcement was evidently based upon the fact that the Russians have evacuated Turkish Armenia and Persia, opening up the way for German or Turkish troops to advance towards the frontier of India without serious opposition.

It is possible that Germany may undertake to open up trade routes in order to secure needed foodstuffs.

Before the war Persia was divided in two parts, the northern half being known as the Russian sphere here of influence and the southern section as the British sphere. This was done to protect trade from the bandits that infested the country.

After the Bolshevik revolution the Teheran Cabinet requested Petrograd to understand that it would relinquish Russia's interest in northern Persia. This is hopefully one of the developments that inspired the German announcement.

Germany has been working since the outbreak of the war to strengthen her influence in Persia, always hoping to establish a point of near-contact with India.

Trotsky Second of Workmen's Leaders to Lose His Power

Leon Trotsky, whose resignation was announced today, was the chief figure in the revolution that overthrew Kerensky, and since that time has practically controlled the policies of Russia.

Trotsky, whose real name is Leber Braunstein, was an exile at the outbreak of the war. He had escaped from Siberia, where he was sent for political offenses. He began preaching for peace, which resulted in his being expelled from Europe. Trotsky came to this country, arriving in New York on January 14, 1917, but after the abdication of the Czar he returned to Russia.

Although Nikolai Lenine was the nominal head of the revolutionists, Trotsky was actually their leader. He made public the text of secret documents exchanged between former Russian governments and foreign governments. He issued statements on the policies of the Bolsheviki, and he made overtures to the Germans for an armistice, which resulted in the now famous peace conference at Brest-Litovsk. The negotiations were halted in February and hostilities renewed. The Germans then asked for another conference at which partial peace terms were submitted by them. Trotsky was not a part in this conference and denounced the terms offered.

His resignation was the second to be forecasted by Berlin. Ensign Krylenko, commander of the Russian army, was reported on Feb. 25 to have resigned. Trotsky was the last survivor of the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' delegates.

Cecil's Declaration May Hasten Action of Japan in Eastern Asia

By International News Service

London, March 9.—Japanese intervention in Siberia may be hastened by the declaration of Lord Robert Cecil yesterday, in which he pointed out the serious phase of the situation in the Far East.

The British government is in receipt of information that German prisoners are being organized in eastern Russia, and that a Prussian general has been sent there to take charge of them.

Just what use Germany may undertake to make of this "prisoner army" is not certain, but the belief is that an attempt may be made to Germanize all of Siberia, and it is even rumored that Northern China may be invaded.

The loyalty of Japan to all her treaty obligations was pointed out by Lord Cecil, and it was made emphatically plain that the Japanese government would do its utmost to protect the interest of all the allies if there should be intervention in Siberia.

Report Provincial Soviets Are in Favor of Continuing War

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, March 9.—A majority of the provincial Soviets that will be represented at the all Russian Congress of Workmen's and Soldiers' delegates which will open at Moscow on Tuesday are in favor of a continuation of the war against the central empires, according to information from Petrograd today.

This does not necessarily mean that the peace treaty will not be ratified, however, for the influence of Lenine, the Bolsheviki leader, and of Trotsky, the Bolshevik foreign minister, must be taken into consideration.

The Petrograd and Moscow Soviets are in favor of ratification, although the Bolshevik press now openly states that "the struggle must go on."

The Bolshevik press takes the view that temporary peace would give the Russians time to prepare for a harder struggle against German militarism.

Russian Transports Sunk by Germans in Baltic Battle

By International News Service.

Stockholm, March 9.—Some Russian transports were sunk by German warships in the Baltic, said a dispatch received here today.

It is understood that the engagement was south of the Aland Islands, off the Finnish coast.

The number of casualties was not given.

It was recently reported in advices from Stockholm that a big German war fleet was in Finnish waters.

SOMERVILLE MAN HELD IN DRAFT CASE

James G. Dadelis of Rochester, N. Y., and more recently of Somerville, was held in $500 by United States Commissioner Hayes for failing to make a return of his questionnaire. Dadelis contended that he never received the questionnaire, but it was brought out that he failed to inform his exemption board in Somerville of his change of address.

The case was continued until Monday. Dadelis was arrested by Lieutenant Danery of the Somerville police, who turned him over to the United States marshal's office.

TRY TO END STRIKE IN SUGAR FIELDS

Washington, March 9.—Steps to get 10,000 laborers in the cane fields of Porto Rico, who have struck for higher wages, to return to work were taken this afternoon when Hugh Kerwin, chief of the conciliation division of the Department of Labor, called F. D. Roberts, the department's conciliator in Porto Rico, to get in touch with the men and endeavor to bring about an adjustment.

The Malden Electric Company and the Malden and Melrose Gaslight Company announce that they are to issue notes, for short term loans for six years to take up floating indebtedness. The War in Europe

By ANTHONY ARNOUX,
Famous Writer on Military Topics.

Mr. Bonar Law made several interesting statements day before yesterday in Parliament, in asking for a new vote of credit of three billion dollars.

The war will have made the British national debt by the end of this month $39,000,000,000, approximately, though of this about $7,000,000,000 represents loans to the Allies and Dominions.

Though assuring a rather violent assumption, that all of these advances are ultimately repaid, the national debt would still remain at the colossal sum of 122,300,000,000, with an annual interest charge of about $1,100,000,000.

How great Britain will manage to provide for her other national expenditures after the war, and at the same time pay this enormous interest charge is a difficult question to answer, and the same general fact is true of each of the other European belligerents.

In 1913 the entire revenue of the kingdom lacked about $170,000,000 of being able to meet the present charge, while the expenses in that year were about $910,000,000, thus making the total annual charge by way of taxation about $1,100,000,000.

Of course the taxes for many years after the war will be far higher than those in the years before, but they will hardly be as high as they are now and industry, commerce, etc., flourish.

Another thing to be considered as well is, that after the war the expenses, too, will be much lower than they were previously, on account of pensions, etc., which will have to be met for many years.

If then we assume that taxation is kept up to the level of 1918, and in addition that it could hardly be kept at higher rates, there would still be a very large annual deficit, running into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

If their debts are to be paid, it is very difficult to see how any European country can avoid a confiscation of a considerable percentage of its people's capital in some form or other.

Possibly ways and means can be discovered of doing this in such a manner as not to inflict intolerable hardship. At all events, this course seems the only way out of the financial muddle.

It looks as though feeling in Russia was calming down and that there will ultimately be little or no serious opposition to the ratification of the treaty recently made with the Teutons.

The Bolsheviki are really more interested in their revolution than in anything else and if peace comes, it will give them the opportunity to devote their undivided attention thereto. As Russia has also taken the final steps towards peace it may be considered that the eastern front in its entirety has ceased to exist as a battle line, though it will require policing for some time.

London was again raided night before last, with apparently meagre results of all kinds.

The British losses for the first week in March were the smallest in many months, aggregating but 2,343, of which only 671 were fatalities.

The withdrawal from the uniform yesterday was much less apparently than the day before, and was confined almost exclusively to the artillery. The reason for this lull is probably the weather conditions, which are stated on the Italian front to have been unfavorable and probably were so on the Somme.

There is no further news as to Japan's actions or intentions in Eastern Siberia. China hopes to be provided with funds by Japan and the United States to enable her to participate in this movement.

A somewhat valuable guide to the average tonnage of British ships vaguely classified as over 1,600 tons is furnished by the statement of Sir Chiozza Money, British Shipping Controller, in Parliament, recently that in 1917 Great Britain built 200 ships over 1,600 tons, which aggregated 1,000,000 tons. This would make the average per ship a trifle over 5,000 tons.

BABY BACK FROM AFRICA AVERTS 13 HOODOO

By CONSTANCE WILLIAMS.

Thirteen is a lucky number for Parker Fail Schofield. But he hardly knows it. Imagine having come half way around the world, and be serenely unconscious of the fact that you had done anything out of the ordinary!

And yet that is what he has done. For he is the thirteen-months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schofield, who have just arrived home from South Africa. The little traveler was born there, a year ago last month, an exile from his home town in Malden. But he is back at last after an uneventful voyage, and is none the worse for his unusual experiences.

You see he is a strong little boy, and being a true citizen of the United States, he is a good sailor, and only smiles cheerfully at mention of the perils he has undergone.

DANGER ALL AROUND.

"But we didn't really undergo any perils." His mother, who was Miss Emma Fail, a practising lawyer and the only woman member of the Malden School Board before her trip, smiled with the same smile her little son uses, when I snatched a few minutes from her busy first day home.

"Of course there were dangers all around us. For instance, a ship in the harbor at Cape Town was blown up shortly before we left. And travelling by water is none too safe in these days, anyway.

"We had rather a stormy voyage. It's a bad time of year, and we ran into the famous monsoons in the China Sea. The trip across the Pacific was fairly rough, too. One of our fellow passengers, who was making her twenty-fifth voyage, said it was worse than she had ever seen it. But nothing can change the elements, you know. We all have to take our chances with them.

"We didn't actually run into any of the horrors of the war, though there was plenty of evidence that it was in progress. We came the way we did—through China and Japan to San Francisco—especially to avoid them. The longest way round is the shortest way home sometimes.

SEEKING THIRD SHIP.

"We crossed the China Sea on a Japanese vessel, and met a good many men—sailors and soldiers who had been in actual service. One man, a sea captain, had been torpedoed twice, and lost his ship each time. He was on his way home for a third.

"There were wounded on ship board too, and in Cape Town before we sailed we saw a great many, brought in from the fighting in Africa as well as from overseas, being taken to the hospitals. And of course there were troops everywhere.

"But the traveling on land, in China and Japan, was really very quiet. We did it all in easy stages, stopping a day or even more, in the larger cities. Nowhere did we have any trouble in getting our passages.

GLAD TO GET HOME

"Of course we are glad to get home," Mrs. Schofield exclaimed when I asked her. "We wouldn't have stayed as long as we did, had it not been that we were detained by my husband's business. Business, you know, ranks with time and tide. It waits, or hurries, for no man.

"It's too bad Parker couldn't have been a few years older, so he could have understood some of the things he has been through.

FIND GIRL OF 17 STRANGLED TO DEATH

By International News Service.

Detroit, Mich., March 8.—Miss Archelous Surmarnian, a pretty seventeen-year-old Armenian girl, was found strangled to death in a shed here. Both hands were tied tightly with a heavy rope.

A heavy piece of linen canvas had been bound three times around the girl's throat and knotted. A long, bloody knife under the body found just outside the shed, and the use to which it had been put was indicated by a bruise on the victim's head.

Miss Surmanian, who fled to Egypt to escape death at the hands of the Turks, is the third girl to be murdered in Detroit within the past thirty days.

WOUNDS WON'T STOP JOHNSON'S NEPHEW

An Atlantic Port, March 8.—Drawn and haggard as a result of having been gassed and carrying a German sniper's bullet in his back and a sharpnel wound in his right thigh, Private T. L. Johnson, nephew of Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, arrived here today aboard a British steamer.

Johnson enlisted in England shortly after the war broke out in 1914 and is now a member of the Royal Army Medical Corps. He has seen continuous service for more than three years, spending several months near the front line trenches, where a number of his companions were shot down.

While gathering wounded in No Man's Land before Loos, Johnson was wounded by shrapnel. On another occasion a German shell blew an ambulance he was driving to pieces, but he was not seriously hurt. Later he was gassed in a gas attack. He is here on a month's furlough and intends to return to the front.

DISABLED TANKER TOWED INTO PORT

An Atlantic Port, March 9.—A British steamer today towed into this port a government tank steamship which she picked up disabled 100 miles southwest of Sable Island. The captain of the Britisher intended to make Halifax, but owing to a blizzard was forced to tow the American 650 miles. The S. O. S. of the disabled ship was picked up Tuesday morning, and the vessels were but 20 miles apart. It took 30 hours, however, to locate the American, which was rolling in a heavy sea, with her machinery crippled. Two attempts to get a line aboard failed. At length a buoy, to which a light line was attached, was floated down to the American and a chavy steel towing hawser hauled in and made fast.

WILSON INDORSES WAR FINANCE BILL

Washington, March 9.—In a letter to Representative Moore of Pennsylvania, President Wilson today urged quick action by the House on the administration war finance bill, designed to give the government full control of the nation's finance and industry.

"I am entirely in favor of the adoption of the war finance corporation bill," the President wrote in response to a direct request as to where he stood. "I deem it in fact a necessary war measure."

Representative Moore pointed out to the President that "no Democrat has started with authority that you approve the war finance corporation bill as a war measure."

NATIONALISTS CLAIM MEN IN CONGRESS

Representative Schall of Minnesota Said to Support Party at Chicago Convention

By International News Service.

Chicago, March 9.—William V. Mahoney, delegate to the National Party Convention in session here, told the convention the new party already has representation in Congress through Representative Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota, who, he said, had deserted the Progressive ranks to join the Nationalists.

He said Representative Charles H. Randall, elected from California as a Prohibitionist, is also expected to transfer his allegiance to the Nationalists.

The following planks have been inserted in the platform:

Initiative, referendum and recall with adequate safeguards against their abuse; short ballot; proportional representation so all minority parties may be represented in the government; an executive budget for municipal, State and National governments.

Election laws permitting absentee electors to vote; comprehensive prison reforms and abolition of contract labor; municipal ownership of all public utilities and all services essentially of a monopolistic nature and assistance to farmers by extension of farm loan laws advances upon crops; government insurance of farmers' and crops. Federal inspection and grading of grain and of farm produce.

A national convention to nominate a presidential candidate will be called in 1920, which will mark the next meeting, the date to be set later.

THREE MORE WAR LABOR DISPUTES ADJUSTED

Washington, March 9.—Adjustment of three more labor disputes involving workers on war contracts is announced by the Department of Labor. They are at the Mount Vernon-Woodberry mills at Baltimore and the American Cyanophospne and Liberty Ordnance Companies, Bridgeport, Ct. At the Baltimore plants the terms of the agreement include the establishment of a nine-hour day immediately and a wage increase of 12½ per cent. This makes a total of 69½ per cent. increase in the wage scale since 1916.

CARRANZA ISSUES CALL FOR MEXICAN CONGRESS

Mexico City, March 9.—President Carranza has issued a call for an extraordinary session of Congress for April 1 to frame laws for election of deputies, Senators and President of the republic. The situation in the State of Tamaulipas, where General Luis Caballeiro and General Lorgas de Lara are rival candidates for the governorship, each with a legislature supporting his claim, also will be considered.

Private Lieutenant John N. Greene, slightly wounded.

Private Tourney F. Borroughs, slightly wounded.

DIED OF DISEASE.

Private Nicholas Daley, died cardine dilation.

Private Aleck Berry, died pneumonia.

When the list appeared it was discovered the addresses of next of kin were omitted, but no one would say what would be the final decision in this respect. It was intimated that President Wilson would personally act on this perplexing phase of the situation brought about by Gen. Pershing's request for the suppression of addresses on the ground that publication of them would aid the enemy.

VERY HELPFUL TO ENEMY.

The position of the War Department is that the complete identification of every casualty makes it possible for the enemy in this country to keep the German War Office informed by means of messages sent through Mexico or Central American countries of the effect of every single movement against American positions.

In fact, army officials say the United States is furnishing the Germans with the very information to get which the Teutons slightly risk men in raiding parties directed against the American trenches. Identification of the units sent against the Germans is of the utmost importance to the enemy, they say, and the way that scrutiny of the committee lists has made this a very easy task for the German intelligence service which admittedly has its agents here, in Mexico and in Cuba.

GRAVE MILITARY ERROR.

With the various National Guard organizations now in France going into action in the near future, it is claimed that continuation of publication of the casualty lists in the manner in which they have been given out here would be a very grave military mistake. Withholding this information, officers point out, actually will save lives of our men.

The position of the committee has been that its plans for controlling the cable and telegraph lines entering Mexico are such that it is impossible for any information of value to the enemy to get out of the United States. Its agents assigned to make the War Department aware of the position that adoption of the plan put into effect by the General Staff, even though it admittedly was at the request of General Pershing, makes it impossible to continue handling the casualty lists.

COL. JAMIESON STIRS CANADIAN RECRUITING

Head of Eastern Division Tells of Announcement to Come From Washington

Lieutenant-Colonel F. C. Jamieson, officer commanding the Eastern Division of the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission in the United States, left for New York after a conference with the leading officials of the mission on the new alien draft law, in connection with which he says an important announcement will come from Washington in the next few days.

Colonel Jamieson announced that during the week a battalion and a half was raised in the United States for the British and Canadian armies. He has instructed the officers of the mission at No. 44 Bromfield street to begin recruiting immediately for the work in connection with the draft law. Copies of the new agreement are in the hands of the mission officials, but cannot be released for publication until permission is obtained from the Washington administration.

It can be stated, however, that a certain period will be given all British subjects in the United States in which to enlist voluntarily, and that at the end of that period they will be drafted into the United States Army under the British and Canadian draft, ages of 20 to 40 years.

At a conference plans were made for a big drive throughout New England to induce British subjects to join the British or Canadian armies before they are forced to serve under the Stars and Stripes. Rallies will be held in every important city and town in New England.

COAL TO BE 30 CENTS A TON CHEAPER FROM APRIL 1 TO SEPTEMBER 1

SUFFICIENT SUPPLY IS ASSURED BUYERS

Penalties Provided for Hoarding and for False Statement of Requirements

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—Regulations for the retail distribution of coal for the year beginning April 1 have been announced by the United States Fuel Administration.

Coal will be thirty cents a ton cheaper from April 1 until Sept. 1, the fuel administrator adopting a different scale from the old one, which provided a sliding figure of 50, 40, 30, 20 and 10 cents per ton less for the months of April, May, June, July and August.

Prices will run generally from $8 to $10 a ton, according to the locality and the transportation difficulties to be met.

Every consumer is assured of a sufficient supply for his next winter's needs at stated prices for every section of the country.

Penalties are provided against hoarding and against false statement of requirements.

Certificates and card systems will be put into operation. Retailers and consumers will be required to specify their coal on hand, their normal consumption and their needs. There can be no juggling of the reports.

PRICES TO BE ANNOUNCED.

Definite instructions will follow probably within a few days to each State administrator, and through him to each community to make public announcement of the prices that the consumers must pay for their coal.

As announced exclusively by the International News Service two weeks ago, there will be stabilized prices in each city and community; person in one section of a city cannot be charged more than those in another.

The consuming public, the man who has no time to make specific inquiry as to what coal should cost—will have figures before him that the retailers must observe. The retailers can charge only one price, which must include delivery. Strict injunction will go to every administrator to enforce the new regulations to the letter.

EXPLANATION BY GARFIELD.

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, Fuel Administrator, discussing the price reduction, made this explanation:

"It is important to note that in order to encourage early buying, a reduction will be made in the cost of anthracite beginning April 1. It is felt that this reduction will be faired to the public, inasmuch as coal is expected to be ordered in April in such quantities that it will prove impossible to make all deliveries during that month or for some time thereafter. Under a sliding scale of reductions, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to treat all consumers equally, even though their orders had been filed upon the same date, while with an average reduction extending over the entire period, all consumers are treated alike."

As a check on consumers who might attempt to secure more than their normal requirements of coal, the retail plan includes a system of reports on deliveries by retailers. They will be prohibited from delivering in excess of the normal requirements of the consumer. False certification of a consumer's needs or of a dealer's needs makes the offender subject to a fine of $5,000 or two years' imprisonment.

PROVISIONS IN REGULATIONS.

The regulations provide:

"Every consumer should be urged on or before April 1 to provide with his regular dealer his order for his reasonable normal requirements for the year ending March 31, 1919. The dealers shall make an estimate when each consumer has received two-thirds of his normal winter requirements, provided that orders of six tons or under may be filled in full.

"New consumers who are unable to have their orders accepted by a dealer should apply to the local fuel administrator. Dealers shall file on the first of each month a statement of all deliveries.

"Until further notice no domestic consumer of coal or coke shall purchase or obtain more coal or coke than is required for his actual use prior to March 31. If he has a supply he shall receive such additional amount as to make up his requirements.

"No person, firm, association or corporation shall purchase any consumer with more coal than is necessary before March 31, 1919.

"On and after April 1, no person, firm, association or corporation shall sell or deliver coal to a domestic consumer who does not first furnish a statement which specifies the amount the consumer has on hand, amount on order and the person from whom given ordered, amount used in the twelve months ending March 1918, and the amount needed to meet his necessary requirements, provided that this may be modified by any State administrator under proper circumstances.

"Carload or bare load lots shall not be delivered to a single domestic consumer or to a group of consumers, except with the permission of the local administrator."

Wilson's Praise to Mother of Five in Service

By International News Service

Washington, March 8. — One American "Spartan mother" is happy today in the receipt of a letter from the chief executive of the nation, congratulating her on the part her five sons are taking in the war. President Wilson sent the following letter to Mrs. Joseph Orient of Lee, Mass.:

"My dear Mrs. Orient: Representative Treadway has brought to my attention the part which your five sons are taking in the military and naval service and I wish to extend to you my heartiest congratulations.

"The spirit of patriotism displayed by your sons is most gratifying.

FISHERMEN FAST AT PROVINCETOWN

From left to right the schooners Valerie, Comorant and J. M. Burke, Provincetown fishing schooners that were driven ashore in the recent gale. The lower picture gives an idea of the ice pacts in which the boats were caught and landed on the shoals.

Provincetown, March 9.—Of the four fishing vessels driven ashore by the recent northeast wave and ice, three remain hard and fast on the shoals. The schooner Progress, Captain Tony King, released herself without damage of any consequence this morning, when the wind shifted to the westward and took a greater part of the ice out in the bay. The schooner Valerie sustained considerable damage and was badly battered by the huge pieces of ice, the keel and rudder were torn away and the holds are full of water. Captain Frank Gaspie stated today that it would be necessary to lighter the vessel's ballast to refloat her, and that efforts would be made as soon as a tug can be secured.

The schooners James M. Burke and Cormorant sustained no damage, but were carried so far in on the shoals that it will be impossible to refloat them, only on a high tide, and then it is doubtful they if anything can be done.

The damage caused by storm and ice this Winter both to the waterfront and shipping is estimated at nearly $50,000, and approximately $100,000 has been lost in the fishing industry. A fleet of more than 50 boats having done nothing for the last three months. Such conditions have been unknown since the Winter of 1876, at which time Provincetown was a noted whaling port. Ice conditions that have prevailed this Winter are the worst on record.

TRIO IN COURT ON CHARGE OF SHOOTING

Identified as Being at Scene of Tragic Shooting on Boylston Street

Three men arrested shortly after the shooting of John Panikos, of New York, at the Boylston street police station, were arraigned in Municipal Court on the charge of murder. They were held without bail until Friday.

They were their names as Solvio Melchiorre, twenty-four, single, of Hull street; Antonio Del Gobbi, twenty-seven, married, of South Boston street, and Gabriello Porcillio, twenty-seven, married, of Broadway, Chelsea. Two of the men had registration cards from New York and Philadelphia.

Identification of persons, in the presence of Captain Thomas F. Goode of the Back Bay station, identified the men as having been in the vicinity of the shooting. One of them was also said to be the person who was seen running away from the spot.

The police believe the men have records in other cities, and investigations are being made. It is probable that there will be further arrests.

A woman said to have been the cause of the trouble is under surveillance. Shortly after leaving this woman Panikos was killed. The police say the other men trailed him, and being unfamiliar with the neighborhood failed to realize they were near a police station. The light has been extinguished in front of the station for some time.

ROXBURY JOINS PROTEST OVER 'L' SERVICE

Road Can Get All the Help It Needs, Declares R. J. Savage

Citizens of Roxbury are joining in the demand for immediate improvement of service on the Boston Elevated road, declaring that the earnest efforts by the road that help is scarce has long ceased to be a valid one.

Richard J. Savage, a prominent merchant of Roxbury and a member of the Roxbury Board of Trade, declares in effect that it is only because of the road that they can get all the help they need if this is true. Mr. Savage declares the road should give improvements in service at once.

Neglected repairs on cars are responsible for many of the breakdowns at critical times of the Elevated's service, President Matthew Brush admitted in a hearing before the Public Service Commission.

It was brought out at the hearing that the woodwork on some of the comparatively new semi-convertible cars had rotted for lack of paint. Some of these cars have not been painted for three years, and have not been cleaned for so long that they are so badly in need of repair to service for twenty-five years, according to a railroad expert.

MACLEOD SCORES METHODS

The unbusinesslike methods of the Elevated in not having asked sufficient money each year to keep its cars in proper repair and to have painted was sharply criticized by Chairman F. J. Macleod of the Public Service Commission.

Following upon the heels of a report in which John H. Hedley of New York, traffic expert, declared the Elevated could save over one million dollars per year in more economical management, the admissions of Elevated officials were looked upon as one of the hard arguments for more economical and efficient control of the road by the public through a board of trustees, should succeed private management, obviously a failure.

That there is a worse hotel than that in the assertion of Mr. Savage, who declares the company is evidently willing to let the road as cheaply as possible in order to increase its revenue.

"I have talked with scores of employes of the road," said Mr. Savage, "and I find that they all say that there is no security of labor and that the company can get all the men it needs.

"Then, why is the road in such a bad condition as it is?" I have asked these men, for cutting down the number of cars from five to five instead of seven." They replied that the company was saving money by doing this, as it does not need so many cars if it has so many men to run a train or hire as many men to keep up the cars.

"The service is certainly very much in need of improvement as I believe the road could improve it without much expense. The road is not running cars enough to take care of the people who crowd into the Dudley street station in front of the station for some time.

"The express cars that used to run through Grove Hall, Field's Corner and other places, now run only to Dudley street and Grove Hall. This is the limit.

It seems to be the policy of the road to force the people into the subways and into the Elevated stations instead of taking them directly where they want to go.

LONG WAITS FOR CARS.

"Formerly we could be able to ride without change; they now are landed on a filtered or subway station, where we must wait from fifteen to twenty minutes for a car. To remedy the state of things would not be so greatly increased coal in the operation of the road, but it would give better service.

"A Boston lawyer who resides in Brookline told me lately that he never sees such lines on cars as during the last four weeks.

"I have never seen anything like it," he declared. "There are great lines of people waiting for everything into Brookline. It has driven a large number of people to taking the surface cars and the autos on the frequented lines.

"It is now impossible to get a car during the rush in Park street, but from 4 to 6 o'clock at night it is impossible to move about in the subway station.

"I do not think it is safe for any one to attempt to get on the front of the platform during the evening rush hour. I have stopped going down that way and I am sure many others have followed suit.

"Something ought to be done and very quickly to relieve the overcrowding of the Park street station. It is only a matter of time before a terrible accident there some day."

FIVE MILLION CHILDREN FOR GARDEN ARMY

Wilson Indorses Huge Project to Raise Half-Billion Dollars' Worth of Food

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—Children of the country are to have an opportunity to "do their bit" toward the winning of the war through a volunteer war garden army.

Expressing the hope that every school will have a regiment in this army, to raise half a billion dollars' worth of food, President Wilson today strongly indorsed a plan being worked out by Secretary Lane of the Interior Department to organize 5,000,000 school children into a home garden army.

"I sincerely hope," President Wilson wrote Secretary Lane, "that you may be successful through the Bureau of Education in arousing the interest of teachers and children in schools of the United States in the cultivation of home gardens.

"Every boy and girl who really sees what the home garden may mean will, I am sure, enter into the purpose with high spirits, because I am sure they would all like to feel that they are in fact fighting in France by joining the home garden army.

"They know that America has undertaken to send meat and flour and wheat and other foods for the support of the soldiers who are doing the fighting, for the men and women who are making the munitions and for the boys and girls of Western Europe and Asia that we must also feed ourselves while we are carrying on this war.

"The movement to establish gardens, therefore, and to have the children work in them is just as real and patriotic an effort as the building of ships or the firing of cannon. I hope that this Spring every school will have a regiment in the volunteer war garden army."

ADOLPHUS OSBORN WILL SUSTAINED

Judge Braley of the Supreme Court has allowed the will of Adolphus Osborn of Cambridge, a former Boston oil merchant, whose application of a $50,000 estate was contested by his granddaughter, Mrs. Minetta Louise Osborn Johnson, who alleged undue influence on the part of the widow, Juann Wadleigh Osborn, and especially by Charles Cole Hamlin, better known as Louisa Langdon, an actress, also a granddaughter of Mr. Osborn. The decision was given only $50 by the will, while Mrs. Osborn and Miss Langdon each received one-fourth of the estate.

Mr. Osborn first met his second wife when, as an amateur actress, she took part in a theatrical show at Brockton. In June, 1912, they were secretly married at North Conway, Me. At that time Mr. Osborn was 80 and his wife 55.

OIL COMPANY GIVES UP MILFORD BUSINESS

Milford, March 9.—About one thousand customers are concerned in this territory in the discontinuance of its business selling gasoline, kerosene and other productions by the Gulf Refining Company, because of government orders which have taken over six of the twelve tank steamers of the company.

said to be his wife, who is nineteen. The police say they are responsible for many breaks in Greater Boston and that their stealings mount into the thousands. Much of this was recovered.

There are eight counts of breaking and entering against the couple and an additional charge of having burglar's tools in his possession was placed against Miller. He had a large bunch of keys and a small, jointed folding Jimmy contained in a neat case.

The police say that Miller served eighteen months in Auburn, N. Y., jail, but was paroled four months ago as the Boston authorities wanted him. In the Superior Court here his case was placed on probation owing to the fact that he had served in New York.

The police say he and the young woman, who is quite good looking, immediately took up again their illegal activities. Miller's picture is in the rogue's gallery at headquarters. Sergeant Irwin made a similar arrest a few days ago.

Detectives have combed the city in an unavailing effort to find a trace of the missing girl. Word has been sent to the police departments of nearby cities and New York, and a watch of all trains is being kept.

INDUSTRIAL MEN DEFEND COAL JOBBERS

Manufacturers throughout the State have organized to protect against the ruling of National Fuel Administrator Garfield which prohibits paying jobbers commissions for obtaining coal supplies. They have taken the matter to James J. Storrow, New England administrator, who will confer with the national chief at a conference in Washington on Tuesday.

More than eighty of the principal manufacturers of Massachusetts met Mr. Storrow and presented a set of resolutions objecting to the order. They announced their intention of going to Washington to protest, but on his advice put the matter in Mr. Storrow's hands.

Their resolutions, which will be presented to Secretary Garfield, say:

"The present system for the sale of coal has been built up by many years of business experience on the part of the coal jobbers who by their use of experts in the mining and the analysis of coal have maintained a high standard of quality and who as their knowledge of transportation have expedited delivery.

The resolutions go on to state that if the dealings with the jobbers are prohibited, the quality of coal sent here for manufacturing purposes will deteriorate and injure industry.

NURSE IN TEARS FACES JUDGE IN DEATH CASE

Miss Millicent I. Cole, the thirty-year-old nurse, who was arrested on a charge of manslaughter as result of the death by poison at the City Hospital last night of Mrs. Carrie Hoch, a bride of No. 249 Bine Hill avenue, was held today when she was arraigned before Judge Albert F. Hayden of Roxbury Court by Sergeant William J. Guffey.

The nurse was accompanied by her counsel, Francis J. Murray, and Sergeant Guffey asked Judge Hayden for a manslaughter warrant against Miss Cole. Judge Hayden said he would hear the evidence on Monday. Miss Cole, who is on bail, was arrested in her room during the hearing Monday on the application for a warrant.

The nurse acted as she entered the judge's office, and wept still more than when she came out. She is a Lowell girl. She came to Boston six months ago and has been at a private hospital in Roxbury.

Mrs. Hoch was only twenty years old and was married last May.

According to the police Miss Cole was attending Mrs. Hoch at the latter's home last Wednesday and says that she gave her a dose of mercury tablets. The nurse had been instructed by the attending physician to administer quinine and the nurse declares that she gave Mrs. Hoch the poison by mistake.

The patient became very ill and was sent to the City Hospital, where her tongue was placed on the danger list. All efforts to save her life were unavailing and she died last night.

Sergeant Guffey of the Dudley street station arrested the nurse. The police believe that the poison was administered by mistake.

DANISH CREW IS SAVED BY U. S. CUTTER

Disabled Craft Abandoned and Then Blown Up, Navy Department Reports

By International News Service.

Washington, March 8.—Almost out of water and provisions and exhausted from their long exposure and hardship in gale after gale, the crew of the two-masted Danish vessel Urda was rescued by an American coast guard cutter in the war zone on January 26, it was announced by the Navy Department today.

The cutter, while proceeding with a convoy, sighted two masts on the horizon. These masts appeared suspicious, due to the fact that the vessel carrying them was headed into the wind. Full speed on the cutter was immediately ordered and the gun crews sent to their stations prepared for action. Approaching the wreck cautiously the international code signal of distress was observed flying from the ship's mast. The first message was: "We want assistance." The second was: "Can you send a boat?"

The commanding officer of the cutter then asked what was wanted. The answer was: "We wish to abandon ship, but have no boat."

The vessel was badly damaged from the gales and was constantly taking on sails and making growth. The master of the Urda also was in need of medical treatment. At the master's request the cutter assisted in destroying the vessel, thereby removing a menace to navigation. The crew was subsequently landed at a European port.

HONORA O'BRIEN WEDS FORMER PLAYMATE

By International News Service.

New York, March 9.—Honora May O'Brien, styled the "young Irish beauty" when she aided 15-year-old John R. Manning, millionaire retired broker, for $1,000,000 heart balm last year, has been secretly married in Ireland to one of her childhood playmates, it was learned when a letter received here by one of her friends.

Miss O'Brien finally settled with Manning for $100,000 after having been awarded a $225,000 verdict and having it reduced by Supreme Court Justice Cropsey to $125,000. Threat of an appeal caused her to accept the lesser amount.

"I changed my name to Daly on Nov. 22d," she wrote to her friend. "Wasn't it quick work? You may remember my telling you about the boy who wanted to marry me three years ago—well, he has had his wish. We are very happy."

The bridegroom is John Daly, a farmer, who owns 125 acres at Skibbereen.

"We have a nice little house. It is a wee bit small and we are looking for larger quarters," the letter continued. "My husband's father and mother are dead, so we are not bothered with mother-in-laws, etc."

Manning was 53 years old when he became engaged to Miss O'Brien. They were to have been married by Cardinal Farley in St. Patrick's Cathedral, December 16, 1916.

But the Cardinal received a telephone message from Manning the day before the time set, saying he had broken the engagement, as his relatives considered there was too great a disparity between his advanced years and the twenty-eight Honorees acknowledged by his fiancee.

The trial of Miss O'Brien's suit attracted wide attention. She testified to ardent wooing by her aged suitor. He sought to impress the jury with a belief that the "Irish beauty" had made the advances.

RHODE ISLAND WOMAN TAKES POISON

Mrs. Strickland Rushed to the City Hospital in Serious Condition

Mrs. Theresa Strickland, twenty-two, of No. 248 Valley street, Providence, was taken to the City Hospital today in an unconscious condition as the result of taking poison.

The woman, with a four-year-old son, Leo, was visited early by her sister, Mrs. Nicholas Cannelli, at 45 Batavia street, whose husband is a private in the Depot Brigade at Camp Devens, Ayer.

According to Mrs. Cannelli, her sister, who is the wife of a Providence munitions worker, came to visit her three weeks ago today. When she found Mrs. Cannelli to be ill, Mrs. Strickland extended her visit and cared for her.

About 3 o'clock today Mrs. Cannelli said that her sister arose and going to the medicine chest drank from several medicine bottles. She then screamed for Mrs. Cannelli's brother, John Halloran. He awoke and learning what had happened sent for a physician, who ordered the woman to the City Hospital, where she is in a serious condition.

According to advices from Providence, Frank Strickland, the husband of the poisoned woman, has not been at his home for a week. A neighbor says that he borrowed $1.25, saying he was going to Boston to bring his wife back. He left his two-year-old son Frank with a friend there.

Strickland is the son of the manager of a Boston dancing school and was employed at the Browne & Sharpe factory in Providence recently. The couple were married five years ago in Boston.

SONGS CHEER EVENINGS OF SOLDIERS

Are Tremendous Influence for Moral Good—Drive Away the Blues

The American soldier's evening program in France, except for the lectures he spends in the trenches, are not much unlike the evening of the entertainments here at home. He feels everywhere the "homey" influences of the Y. M. C. A. the Salvation Army, Catholic and other agencies. There are games. There are books and magazines and newspapers. And there is always a piano.

Everybody knows what sort of songs the young men like at home. They haven't changed just because they're in France; they still like a good song.

Perhaps the leader would like to sing the very songs the boys are singing, not only over there, but over here. The editor of the Boston Sunday ADVERTISER-AMERICAN, assisted by your desire, has collected some forty or more of these ballads in the collection of War Songs, 1918 edition, which will be distributed free of charge with tomorrow's Sunday paper.

The selection of War Songs, in addition to the old favorites of song, other "hits," contains the words complete of thirty-nine songs that are on the lips of every American boy. Sing the songs the boys are singing, order your Sunday ADVERTISER-AMERICAN now.

FEBRUARY SALES OF WAR STAMPS $9,423

The sales of war saving certificates and thrift stamps for last month amounted to $71,422, according to F. W. Child, who is in charge of the war savings service in the Boston Postoffice. Of the amount the letter carriers sold $59,711 worth and the money order department handled $11,212. Competition between the various postal stations was very keen, the leadership being held by Quincy over all other stations with a total of $19,272.

Tokio in Fear of Submarines in the Pacific

By FRANK H. KING,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Tokio, March 9.—The shadow of the German menace is looming darker in the Far East daily.

Newspapers declare that the possibility of German aeroplanes over Tokio and the presence of submarines in the Pacific is not a mere dream, now that the Germans dominate Russia, but a very dangerous likelihood that must be considered.

The press is urging action without delay.

LYNN MACHINE LASTERS BACK AT WORK

Most of Strikers Return Following Promise to Renew Union Agreement

Most of the Lynn lasting machine operatives who went on strike Friday, have returned to work following an agreement by the independent shoe factory owners to renew for another year the wage agreement with the union. The settlement was brought about by the representatives of the national union, but not coming to an end when the strike was put into effect.

The lasters of the association factories are still holding out, demanding the piece work scale be made the same as that of the independent operators. At present they are paid half a cent less on each pair of shoes.

Officials of the union are to take their case to the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration and try to effect some settlement.

One hundred and sixty of the two thousand workers who walked out are back at their machines.

WOMEN HAVE BIG SHARE IN U. S. WAR WORK

Speakers at Intercollegiate Conference Show Response to Patriotic Call

Women's part in industry and the opportunity presented to her in government service was discussed by several speakers at sessions of the Intercollegiate Conference on Vocational Opportunities for Women in Wheaton College. The conference has been one of the most successful of its kind ever held in the country.

Miss Julia C. Lathrop, head of the children's department, United States Department of Labor, told the conference that when the war broke out there were about 12,000 women in the government service in Washington and that about 20,000 had since been appointed.

She declared that the federal service gave a wide opportunity to women with the further advantage of civil service protection.

Other speakers were Miss Josephine Sutton, Miss Mary S. Gilson, Marion L. Ayer and Henry P. Kendall.

Miss Catherine Fiske of Boston was chairman of the conference committee and Miss Georgia H. Marsh of Newton was one of its members.

WOMEN THRICE EFFICIENT IN SHELL WORK

British Figures Show Wonderful Results in Munitions by Feminine Labor

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—The introduction of women workers in the English war munitions factories has shown that one woman can turn out as many big shells a day as required three men before. After a few weeks of training the women have proved the value of the machines allotted them. This is reported today in the monthly bulletin of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics.

An investigation of the operation of a British national shell factory in which women are employed in the three chief operations performed on the nine-inch shells resulted in proving women's superiority and speed over the trained male machinist. In the operation of boring the parallel part of the shell body each skilled man turned out eight shells per ten-hour shift. Women nearly equalled this record the first week; after six weeks' training they topped the record with eighteen shells a day, increased it to twenty shells, and their present rate is twenty-four shells daily.

Similar figures were reached in the two other operations. Skilled workmen were able to turn out ten or eleven in roughing the head. The complete boring of the shell required a skilled man 3.16 hours. Women equalled this within a week's practice, and at the end of three months had reduced the time to 1 hour 15 minutes, increasing the output in their short apprenticeship 50 per cent. of normal.

Sixty per cent. of the employes are women and dilution is still going on. It was found that the higher percentage of women the greater the output.

Swift & Company Publicity

At a recent hearing of the Federal Trade Commission there was introduced correspondence taken from the private files of Swift & Company, which showed that the Company had been considering for some time an educational advertising campaign.

The need for this publicity has been apparent to us for several years. The gross misrepresentation to which we have recently been subjected has convinced us that we should no longer delay in putting before the public the basic facts of our business, relying on the fair-mindedness of the American people.

The feeling against the American packer is based largely on the belief that the income and well-being of the producer and consumer are adversely affected by the packers' operations, resulting in unreasonably large profits.

Swift & Company's net profit is reasonable, and represents an insignificant factor in the cost of living.

For the fiscal year 1917 the total sales and net profit of Swift & Company were as follows:

Sales
$875,000,000.

Profits
$34,650,000.

This is equivalent to a $3,465. profit on a business of $87,500.

If Swift & Company had made no profit at all, the cattle raiser would have received only ⅛ of a cent per pound more for his cattle, or the consumer would have saved only ¼ of a cent per pound on dressed beef.

LAY PLANS FOR LIBERTY LOAN DRIVE

House-to-House Canvass of Boston Wards Is Provided For

A "house-to-house canvass" of Boston in the interest of the Third Liberty Loan, which comes April 6, was provided for at a meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee of Boston at the Exchange Club.

C. F. Weed, former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, was chosen chairman of the Boston Committee, and Robert C. Morse, vice-chairman. In the absence of Mr. Weed, vice-chairman Morse presided.

In order to facilitate the work of soliciting every home to purchase a third Liberty Bond, the city will be divided into districts following ward lines, and ward chairmen have been appointed to supervise the work in their respective districts.

Under the plan outlined all ward chairmen will appoint sub-chairmen for their various precincts, who will, in turn, supervise the enrollment of a team of house-to-house canvassers for each precinct.

Precinct committees will be formed on or before March 15, and team captains will be reported by March 22. Captains of teams will be in readiness with their full enrollment of actual workers by March 30. The "big drive" commences Saturday, April 6, on the anniversary of the date of America's declaration of a state of war with Germany. The third Liberty Loan campaign is scheduled to last three weeks.

FITCHBURG COMMERCE CHAMBER GOES "DRY"

Fitchburg, March 9.—The Chamber of Commerce has unanimously endorsed the prohibition amendment and protests against the adoption of a referendum. The question was brought before the organization by Hon. Frederick Woodick, editor of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League and a prominent business man of this city.

Richard King, New York Physician and Medical Author says:

EVERY WOMAN
EVERY MOTHER
EVERY DAUGHTER
NEEDS IRON
AT TIMES

To help strengthen her nerves and put color into her cheeks

"There can be no beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women without iron. The trouble in the past has been that when women needed iron they generally used ordinary metallic iron pills which often corroded the stomach and did more harm than good. I always insist that my patients take only organic iron—Nuxated Iron. This particular form of iron is easily assimilated, does not blacken nor injure the teeth nor upset the stomach. It will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, irritable, careworn, haggard-looking women in ten days' time in many instances. I have used it in my own practice with most surprising results.—Ferdinand King, M.D.

SISTER'S PLEA FREES BOY FROM JAIL

Judge Aiken and Pelletier Are Touched by Story—Youth Is Paroled

When a pretty girl appeared before Chief Justice Aiken in the Superior Court and told the jurist that her brother, Robert Rollins, fifteen years old, of No. 25 Alpine street, Roxbury, was confined in the Charles Street Jail on a charge of stealing a pair of his mother's shoes, the Justice released the boy on his own recognizance.

HELD IN $1,000 BAIL.

Later, it was learned that young Rollins had been arrested on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny, on Monday, and had been held in $1,000 bail by Judge Joseph R. Churchill, in the Dorchester District Court.

District Attorney Pelletier appeared in court with the girl, whose first name is withheld, and advocated the boy's release.

The boy's sister had first gone to Mr. Pelletier with her story, and the kind-hearted prosecutor immediately took the case before Justice Aiken.

Mr. Pelletier, speaking of the case against young Rollins, said:

"I do not know of the breaking and larceny charge. Anyway, the boy was confined in Charles street jail since Monday, and I do not believe that he ought to have been confined there, no matter what charges was lodged against him."

QUESTIONED BY JUDGE.

After the Chief Justice had heard the girl's story and young Rollins had been brought before the court, Justice Aiken asked:

"Who started the complaint against you, your mother?"

Before the boy could answer, his sister spoke up:

"No, sir, a police officer did."

The boy was then asked to tell his story. He said:

"Mother sent me to get the shoes. I used them when skating."

He told the Chief Justice that the officer who arrested him on the street accused him of stealing the shoes; that the officer refused to believe the story, took him to the police station and had him booked for stealing the shoes.

MILFORD SWAPS ONE LIGHTLESS NIGHT FOR TWO

Milford, March 9.—James J. Storrow of Boston, New England Fuel Administrator, has granted a request of the Milford fuel committee, made through Chairman Thomas F. Flanigan, so that Wednesday and Sunday nights will be "lightless" nights in Milford instead of Thursday. The change was made because Thursday, generally designated as "lightless" night, is one of the trade nights of the week in Milford.

MALKIN CLEVER IN SYMPHONY PROGRAM

Orchestra Gives Beethoven's Works in D Major, With the Goldmark Overture

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Joseph Malkin, the respected violist of the Boston Symphony, was solo-ist at yesterday afternoon's concert. He played the Lux concerto for violin-cello. The other numbers were the Goldmark Overture "Sakuntala" and the Beethoven Symphony in D major.

Doctor Muck has recently persisted in replacing the symphony at the end of his program instead of the beginning. Whether it is a silent protest at the situation he has been in since we declared war on Germany, "the world turned upside down" or whether it is just an experiment, nobody knows.

I like to hear my symphony in the early half of the afternoon when I am fresh and eager, rather than after half an hour of a violoncello concerto, even when performed by such an excellent musician as Malkin.

Some of the conductor's predecessors have been charging that he would not play works by Saint-Saens and D'Indy, because of the anti-German activity of those French composers. Just as he overwhelmed the people who didn't think he would play "The Star Spangled Banner" by playing it at every performance, so he has confounded these other critics by announcing the Saint-Saens Symphony No. 3, for next week.

ODDS AND ENDS AN INTIMATE AFFAIR

"Odds and Ends," which Jack Norworth is bringing to Boston next week, is styled an "intimate revue." So Van Hilsener-Kim. From all I hear, the resemblance between the two pieces begins and ends there. The intimacy of Hitchen's piece consisted of the star getting into the audience, making the most spectacular looking spectators and kidding his own show.

Norworth is another sort of performer. When he was associated with Nora Bayes, the over-sophisticated need to intimate that Nora did the work and Jack handled the baggage. Since their separation he has demonstrated that he is a two-fisted winner all by himself.

In England he was a sensational hit. He came back to America and announced that he would produce a review in a tiny theatre called "The Norworth," which had to be built to order for him to carry out his threat. "Odds and Ends" was the result.

People who have seen it assure me that it is an unusually clever hodge podge of variety, music and girls. Norworth wrote most of the words and music. As a song writer he takes his hat off to nobody, as you will remember. He didn't write the "Star Spangled Banner," but he wrote all the other popular songs that were not composed by George Cohan or Irving Berlin.

The idea of an intimate review is to get close to the audience, make the man in the last row in the orchestra feel that he and Norworth and the rest of the troupe are having a little party together. I am told "Odds and Ends" succeeds in this sort of intimacy very well.

Wears Patent Leathers Now.

Step right up and shake hands with William Webster vaudegrift. You don't know who he is? Yes you do. He is Billy B. Van.

Yes, he is the man who sang Patsy Bolliver and Hinky Dee in his old unregenerate days before he broke into two-dollar musical comedy, and got his laughs without any rough stuff.

Billy Van is a very important individual in "The Rainbow Girl." He is the rainbow part of the title, the name being derived from the costumes worn by him in the first act.

I called on Mr. Van in his dressing room at the Colonial the other day. He had a large box of candy on his dressing table, and every few minutes a chorus girl would knock on his door and say:

"Oh, Mr. Van. Gimme some candy."

Pretty soon there wasn't any candy on his dressing table. Billy and I discussed his home in Van Harbor, Lake Sunapee. Van Harbor is named after William. Up in New Hampshire they take him seriously and elected him justice of the peace.

If Justice Van could turn around suddenly and look back ten years or Billy Van he would send him up for disorderly conduct, disturbing the peace and other crimes and misdemeanor, but let the dead past bury its dead. In the eighteen years he has summered on Sunapee a little town has grown up around his cottage and he has become the Nestor of the community.

"I see your methods of making them laugh haven't changed much Mr. Van, making due allowances for the character of the times."

"See those shoes?" asked Mr. Van, holding out a pair of scow shaped brogans. "A shoemaker in New York has that last and turns them out for me. He used to do it when I was in burlesque. Only difference is that now I have them in patent leather."

Hamilton's Hurdy-Gurdy.

Wednesday afternoon I happened into the Hollis just after Hamilton had made a deal with Jefferson and Munroe by which the government was to assume the debts of the various States and hold its head up to the world. It was a Summer evening. Hamilton strolled to the window, opened it and stood looking out at the dying day.

Far down the street, apparently, there was music. It was a street piano playing "The Star Spangled Banner."

The music suited the scene so perfectly that many people accepted it as part of the play. Others realized that it was a horrible anachronism, for street pianos were unknown at that period and "The Star Spangled Banner" was not written for a dozen years afterwards.

But it was not Mr. Arliss' fault. The music came from a hurdy-gurdy, harbinger of Spring, which was playing outside on Hollis street. Pure coincidence.

Regarding Roasting.

"I read your Straight Tips on the Theatre, and you made every show in town," declared a friend of mine. "Don't you think follows ever roast?"

Yes, when necessary, but not at the expense of the truth. The people of Boston do not appreciate their luck. There are bad shows, lots of them, but very few reach this city.

The producers of plays at the present time are nearly all New Yorkers. They send them out to play a few small towns immediately after production, and they call it "trying it on the dog." The dog eats any number of them.

Those that survive are rushed into New York as soon as a theatre can be secured for a Broadway verdict. Broadway kills off the great majority of them. Those that survive are pretty sure to have merit.

Once upon a time any piece which could stick it out in New York for a few weeks could get a route over the country, no matter how bad it might be. But one-night stands are a thing of the past. Routes are hard to get.

As a result cities like Boston and Philadelphia are visited only by those attractions which have enjoyed a successful season in New York, and occasionally by a big production which is waiting for a New York opening, "The Rainbow Girl," for example.

Rough on New York.

New York people are the victims of bad shows. New York critics are compelled to witness dreadful affairs. But New York serves as a sieve for Boston. Here we get the refined, tested product.

Your individual taste may not always be pleased by what you find in Boston first class theatres, but a play that is honestly and intrinsically unworthy very rarely gets a booking.

In town next week are "Odds and Ends," "The Man Who Came Back," "A Successful Calamity," "Hamilton," "Potash and Perlmutter" and "The Very Idea," every one of which is a New York success, and to any one of which you can go with the assurance of getting your money's worth. A critic who roasted any of them ought to have his head examined.

Cigar Smoke and Mrs. Fiske.

I had begun to wonder if we were ever going to see Lord Dunsany's wierd little masterpiece, "A Night at an Inn."

This playlet caused more interest than any big play in recent years. Curiously enough it got its first American production in the Neighborhood Playhouse on Grand street, New York, an East Side settlement institution. Then it got into the repertory of the Washington Square Players. Next it went traveling with the Portmanteau Theatre, but it never reached Boston. Now Mrs. Fiske puts it on as a curtain-raiser to another thriller, "Service," in which she appears herself.

Dunsany is an Irishman with a strong vein of mysticism. He has written several plays, but nothing with the wallop of "A Night at an Inn."

"Service" is another drama which has been promised an American production for some time, but if it were not for Mrs. Fiske's tiring of cigar smoke in "Mme. Sand," might have waited another season. Henri Lavedan, of the French Academy, wrote it long before the war broke out, but its topic, pacifism versus patriotism, bears with prophetic force upon the great world struggle.

The horror of "A Night at an Inn" and the anguish and suffering of "Service" indicate an exciting week at the Tremont.

Erin Go Braugh.

Marjorie Rambeau, the Titian-haired actress who believed the piano tuner who told her he was a marquis and got into the public print thereby within a few weeks, is not with Max Marcin's "Cheating Cheaters," the mystery farce by Max Marcin which succeeds Potash and Perlmutter at the Park Square next week. Ellen Cohen, a real Irish girl, who was born on the Isle of the Saints at Loughrea, Galway, and who didn't come to this country until she was quite a colleen, is now playing the heroine of this queer comedy of crooks. Professor Dennis Shea, the authority upon Celtic geneology, assures me that few of the actresses who claim to be Irish can actually boast of originating in the Emerald Isle. Some who wear Irish names, like Nance O'Neil, assumed them upon going upon the stage, although they might be Swedish, German or Anglo-Saxon.

I knew that Hebrew prize fighters fought better when camouflaged as Hibernians, but I didn't know that a Celtic cognomen carried histrionic qualifications.

Springtime Originals Coming.

When "Miss Springtime" was done here last season it was performed by a special Boston company, the original troupe continuing its run at the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York. Very shortly this company will reach the Tremont Theatre to show Boston how the creators of the roles in the most tuneful of operettas compare with the seconds. Elsa Alder and Jack Hazzard are playing the chief parts in this outfit. Georgia O'Ramey has flitted to "Leave It to Jane," and Frances Cameron plays her part. George MacFarlane still plays the opera singer hero.

Venus Not Diving.

Annette Kellermann is giving the ocean a rest this Winter and heading a one-act musical comedy troupe which plays Keith's next week. In it Miss Kellermann will solve the ancient riddle, "Can a fish sing?"

TWO PLAYS BY FISKE FOLLOW

A double bill of surpassing interest will replace Mme. Sand at the Tremont next week. Mrs. Fiske has prepared Lord Dunsany's "A Night at an Inn," a thrilling one-act play which has made a sensation elsewhere but has not been given in Boston, and Henri Lavedan's drama, "Service."

This piece was produced in Paris in 1913. It ran 800 nights at the Theatre Sarah Bernhardt. The mother is the martyr of patriotism in "Service." She is born of a military family and sees her father and brothers die for their country. An army officer marries her. Two of their sons are killed in far off Africa, while the third, the baby, is in daily danger with his regiment. The daughter is a Red Cross nurse.

The production Monday night of this drama will be its first anywhere in this country. Few of the players in "Mme. Sand" figure in this week's bill. Lee Baker, Roger Lgiton, Ian Robertsen, Alexa Fior and Georges Flatteau appear in "Service."

In Dunsany's "A Night at an Inn" Frank Goldsmith, Tracy Barrow, Robert Vivian and Gerald Pring play the sailors and Rikel Kent, Owen Meech, Charles Peyton and Rene de la Chapelle play the priests of Klesh and Klesh himself.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Jack Norworth's brilliant revue, "Odds and Ends of 1917," with its original cast direct from its successful New York run, is to pay us a visit at the Majestic beginning Monday. Are you a user of the telephone? You will find in "Odds and Ends" Harry Watson, Jr., in his most excruciating mood, burlesqueing the trials and troubles of the telephoner. Are you a frequenter of restaurants and cabarets? You will find Jack Norworth and beautiful Lillian Lorraine in a laughter-provoking caricature of the modern jazz band. Do you like vaudeville? You can anyway laugh till your sides ache at John Birch and Marjorie Poir in their satire of the kind of thing which Annette Kellermann offers to music hall audiences; while Harry Watson, Jr., in his famous hat impersonations turns the rapier of his mordant satire on yet another phase.

But this is not all, for in addition to the stars already enumerated there is a supporting company of exceptional excellence, containing as it does dainty Hettie Parker, a Boston girl, by the way; pretty Maxine Brown, Frank Shannon (another Bostonian); Jay Dillon, Joseph Herbert, Jr., Uhert Carlton and Jack Coogan, whose fame as an eccentric dancer has penetrated so far from the Boston of his upbringing as to be a byword all over Europe.

GAYETY THEATRE

Starting with Monday matinee, the attraction at the Gayety Theatre will be Dave Marion's Own Company with the one and only Dave Marion heading the cast of stars engaged in this year's production. A two-act revue in fifteen gorgeous scenes, entitled in the second edition of "The World of Frolics," will be presented as the vehicle in which Mr. Marion and his company are given an opportunity to display their fun-making ability.

S. H. Dudley a colored performer and late star of "The Smart Set" company, is Mr. Marion's assistant in the comedy department. His work is of the highest degree, and between the two many comedy situations of the highest grade are presented, which are said to be side-splitting.

Not content with these two stars in one production, Mr. Marion has engaged a list of people whose work is of the highest type in their respective lines. Chief among them are Agnes Behler, Alpine Four, a quartet

WALDRON'S CASINO

Jean Bedini's Parisian Novelty Show will be the attraction at Waldron's Casino beginning Monday matinee. In offering his show this season Mr. Bedini is giving the lovers of good, clean, wholesome burlesque the kind of a show that is bound to meet with their approval. The entire production has been handsomely equipped and costumed and from a scenic point of view vies with anything so far seen at the Casino this season.

The burlettas, written by Jean Bedini, are declared brimful of good, clean-cut, wholesome comedy, intermingled with bright and catchy musical numbers, clever bits and novelty vaudeville specialties.

The cast is made up of a number of well known vaudeville and burlesque artists and include such capable players as Clark and McCullough, tramp comedians; Bob Harmon, eccentric comedian; Bob Murphy, "straight;" George Brooks, characters; Jean Bedini himself; Helen Lorayne, prima donna; May Myers, ingenue; Marie Sabbott, soubrette, and a chorus of twenty beautiful girls.

Straight Tips on the Theatres.

By the Dramatic Editor.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"The Man Who Came Back," a melodrama with a thrill and a punch, continues to draw as vigorously as ever, although it begins its twelfth week Monday.

COLONIAL THEATRE—"The Rainbow Girl," latest of K. and E. musical successes has the merit of being funny, tuneful and full of pretty girls.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—George Arliss in "Hamilton" is proving that there is a great interest in historical dramas in Boston, for this unusual comedy is enjoying prosperity.

SHUBERT THEATRE—"The Very Idea," with Ernest Truax, Richard Bennett and a fine cast, is proving how a delicate subject can be handled skillfully and humorously.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—This is the last week of "Potash and Perlmutter in Society," funniest of the Montague Glass comedies of Jewish life in New York.

WILBUR THEATRE—William Gillette, in "A Successful Calamity," begins his third week in Clare Kummer's brilliant comedy.

COPLEY THEATRE

"The Philanderer," one of the many comedies that Bernard Shaw has given to the stage, will have its first performance in Boston at the Copley Theatre Monday evening. It is characteristic of Shaw in scenes, dialogue and action. He wrote it in the nineties, but it is rarely acted, and for that reason its performances by the Henry Jewett Players at the Copley will be a novelty, especially to the many theatregoers who eagerly await everything that comes from Shaw's pen.

The character and the conduct of Julia Craven form the central motive of "The Philanderer." She is in love with Leonard Charteris, who has been for some time under the spell of her beauty and intellectual force. At last he discovers her shallowness, and casts her off, transferring his affections to a sensible and charming young widow, Grace Transfield. Julia's anger at Charteris for his jilting of her, her jealousy of Grace Transfield and the dramatic and romantic steps she finally takes, make up a brilliant comedy.

By F. KEITH'S THEATRE

A bill to suit the taste of the most jaded theatre-goer has been arranged at B. F. Keith's next week, and heading the list of stars will be Annette Kellermann, Venus of the Deep, dancer, tight rope walker, singer and the most versatile vaudeville star on the stage, with a chorus of beautiful girls, starting scenic settings, lavish costuming and tuneful music, all blended into a musical comedy revue of scenic splendor. In fact Annette Kellermann's Big Show, as far as magnitude is concerned, is a threering circus. Gertrude Vanderbilt is sponsor for Ray Fern and Marion Davis and is not only their manager but their stage director, costumer and scenic artist. Of course she does not actually make the scenery or costumes, but she does design both. "A Nightmare Revue" is the vehicle which serves this clever young couple in vaudeville. A program of his own songs and stories will be offered by Lieutenant B. C. Hilliam, "British Columbia." Lieutenant Hilliam is a well known raconteur whose songs and stories are always of the superlative type. An educational, amusing, interesting and spectacular bit of pantomimic gorgeousness is Mme. Cronin's Electrical Novelty, with Mlle. Juliette premiere danseuse.

EASTER SUNDAY CONCERT

One of the surest harbingers of Spring is in the announcement of the annual Easter Sunday concert given each year at the Colonial Theatre under the management of the popular heads of the executive staff of the theatre, Thomas B. Lothian, Grover Burkhardt and Frank Cauley. There is promised to be a greater list of novelties this year than ever before, many of the notables on the bill coming from the companies playing in the leading theatres.

SUNDAY CONCERT AT THE HOLLIS STREET

Sunday evening, April 7, is the date fixed for this season's concert given by the popular members of the Hollis Street Theatre executive staff, Henry Taylor and Vincent Fetherston. Each year it has been the practise to give a show which challenges for excellence any of the season's Sunday offerings, and they promise that this year there will be given a bill of equally high calibre.

Listen, Minsk, like Zitkeh says, "being an adopted child is an investment—if they don't like how you're growing up you can always settle for so much and call it off." Bringing up a smallish child, if it ain't your own, don't make no difference. If its smallish hends tries to pull your beard out and scratches up your forehead, if it wakes you up 3 in the cold morning, or if it does this or that to you, it don't mean that being a stranger that he's an enemy to you! Your own flesh and blood will do excetie the same to you—maybe worse yet, if he's got your nature! So what's the difference?

Up to a certain age your own, odder an adopted one, don't know whether you're Rockenfeller odder Pintick, the plumber! So if a couple's life is oppess empty they can make no mistaks in bringing up a store child. Its warm palmess is just as klasabla, it'll fall off your back when you're playing 'horsey,' the same like your own little Jake odder Lena! By the time they grow up you may be human yourself, and they'll like you, anyhoe, then.

Here I'm talking my ideas, and by the Shubert, where its playing "The Very Idea," they got exectie such a play that'll explain you more clearer what I meant! It's about rich people who wants to pay Charieh Cheplin's weekly salary for a "A" No. 1 adopted child. But they adopt one in advence—and that's where the trouble commences!—finished, rather! They didn't figure on a lot of things. Again I'm wrong—they did figure on lots of things—they had the nursery ready, and everything prepared for the child's growing up, they was so sure of getting the boy—they also figured that—but they didn't figure the main thing—mother love!

The play is handled so clever like, so dared like, so right like that there really was not enough acts to satisfy me odder the audience. And funneh, why, in the—you can listen, Beatrice!

GLOBE THEATRE

At the Globe Theatre, beginning with a Monday matinee and to continue throughout the week, there will be presented the motion picture spectacle, "The Fall of the Romanoffs," a photoplay dealing with Russia of the declining days of the monarchy and the momentous happenings attending the dissolving of the court. It is as tremendous a story as any event in the world's history, and it is doubtful if ever there was as fantastic a figure which was directly or indirectly the cause of the overturning of a nation as Rasputin, around whom the action revolves. This photoplay has for one of its central personages Iliodor, who has posed in the studio for his own character and who is responsible for the historical intimacies concerning Rasputin, he having been at one time the confidant of the traitor monk. A notable cast of principals are pictured, notably Nance O'Neil as the Czarina, Conway Tearle, Charles Craig, Edward Connelly and Alfred Hickman.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

An all-star vaudeville bill will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre the first half of the week, many of the numbers being capable of leading any bill. Prominent on the bill is the Hal Langdon Trio in a breezy program of comedy and songs. Dunbar & Turner will appear in eccentric comicalities, and Marla, a dainty girl accordionist, will play a repertoire of classic and popular numbers. Georgallis Trio in a sharpshooting exhibition, and Kalma & Company in an illusion novelty, "Kanning the Kaiser," are also on the program. On the screen there will be shown the latest News Pictorial, a comedy, and the photoplay, "The House of Glass," picturing Clara Kimball Young as the wife of the railroad president who discovers that she formerly was convicted of a crime for which she suffered imprisonment. It is a drama of strong situations, and incidentally it arraigns the judicial system for the maladministration of justice which allowed the wrong that she suffered through unjust conviction. The Thursday change of bill will bring Donison and Goldie in their comedy, "Some Life," the one-act drama, "Twixt Soft."

MODERN AND BEACON THEATRES

Mary Pickford comes again in one of her most pleasing impersonations when throughout the week at the Beacon Theatre she is shown pictured in her latest photoplay, "Amarilly of Clothes Line Alley," in which she plays a little slavey of the tenements, a scrub girl in a theatre. She meets with adventure most unexpectedly, which in turn brings her to high places. On the same bill will also be shown for the first times "Sunshine Nan," picturing the diminutive and Elfin Ann Pennington, well remembered as the dainty little dancer of the Follies. This photoplay shows her as a child of the pavements who pulls herself up by her figurative boot straps, and eventually becomes an ornament to the community and a useful citizeness. Short comedy films and News Pictures will complete the bill. The usual Sunday concert will be given.

PERSUASIVE PEGGY AT PARK

Manager Thos. D. Sorlero has arranged an excellent program for his patrons next week at the Park Theatre, at the top of which is that ever popular Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in their latest Metro production, "The Brass Check," in six acts. The story tells how a young man is unjustly committed to an insane asylum through the intrigue of a great rubber trust to whom he had refused to sell his invention. A pretty romance enters into the story, and the young lady becomes the bride of her brother's partner. The story is an unusual one and holds the audience spellbound at its unexpected occurrences.

Following on the bill is Peggy Hyland in the Famous reproduction of the story "Persuasive Peggy," a Mayfair masterpiece in six acts. It takes Peggy's personality and ability to teach her husband from the time they are married that her ways are the correct ones.

The Metro Travelogue and the Pathe Weekly of current events promise most interesting. The latest events of our boys over in France are included in the Weekly. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in their latest comedy afford a great many laughs so the program. The singers on the bill are Helen Ford, the Dresden china prima donna, a novelty artiste from "The Man Who Came Back," and Mr. Irving Jackson, a popular favorite at the Park Theatre.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

The leading act on the vaudeville bill for the first half of the week at Lowe's St. James Theatre will be the Hazel Kirke Quintet in an offering combining singing, comedy and dancing, presented in two scenes. Maude Durand and Company is due for second honors with her comedy bit, "Their Creeds," a playlet with an appealing story. Other acts on the bill will be O'Connor and Dixon in the comedy skit, "Hired and Fired;" Ward and Cullen in "Song Storiettes;" and Harrah and Jacquelina, performing the latest dances on skates. On the screen there will be shown the latest News Pictorial, a comedy and the photoplay, "The Family Skeleton," featuring Charles Ray. The Thursday change of bill will bring Jarrow, the conjurer; the Iouanas Family of entertainers; Green and Fuch; Cornalia and Adele; the Four Deltenos, acrobatists, and on the screen, the fourth episode of the historic drama films of Abraham Lincoln's life, "My First Jury," and the photoplay, "The Rosary Murders," picturing Clara Kimball Young.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE

"Cheating Cheaters," described as a melodramatic mystery farce, will be the next attraction at the Park Square Theatre, where it will begin an engagement Monday evening, March 18. Written by Max Marcin and produced by A. H. Woods, it comes fresh from triumphs both in New York and Chicago, where it engaged long and prosperous runs. It is an unusual offering in theatrical fare with its several personages who earn their livelihood by their wits and who are set in opposing purposes.

BOSTON THEATRE

"Lest We Forget," a photodrama long heralded and eagerly awaited, will head the picture bill at the Boston Theatre next week, the rest of the features including some vaudeville offerings of the superlative class. This great eight-act photoproduction provides a mighty panorama of events now historical, connected with the opening days of the war, and follows its progress through the later thrilling months. A beautiful love story shines like a star through the darkness, the roar of battle sometimes sounding like a mighty accompaniment to the human drama being played. Three Hickey Bros., John P. Gordon and company, Grust, Kramer and Grust, Nevin and Louise complete the bill. The usual concert with vaudeville and pictures tomorrow night.

"ECCENTRIC LORD COMBERDENE"

The Copley Theatre during the week of March 18 will run the second of the first performances in America of "Eccentric Lord Comberdene," a play described by its author, R. C. Carton, as a farcical romance. Mr. Carton is a well known English playwright, his best known work for the stage being "Lord and Lady Algy." In his "Eccentric Lord Comberdene" he has written a play no less interesting and amusing than that great success.

The Quinine That Does Not Affect Head Because of its tonic and laxative effect, LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE can be taken by anyone, even expectant mothers or nursing mothers, without affecting either mother or baby. Call for full name and look for signature of E. W. GROVE. 25 cents. Adv.

GEOGRAPHY LESSON IN FILM

A number of familiar New York landmarks will appear in the screened version of "The House of Glass," in which Clara Kimball Young is pictured, and which will be given its first Boston showings at the Orpheum Theatre the first half of the week. The famous correction houses at Blackwell's Island, the Tombs, Jefferson Market and the Pennsylvania station figure prominently in the play, and to gain verity the places themselves were pictured by the motion camera.

When these scenes were taken, Miss Young was present, of course, and the crowds were quick to recognize her, with the result that the operatives were seriously hampered in their activities through the presence of the interested and admiring throng.

The house of glass from which the play takes its title is that in which dwells a prosperous railroad head, who, as he is sternly pressing the prosecution of a young employe caught stealing, learns of that late date that his wife is recognized by the detective whom he is aiding as an ex-convict.

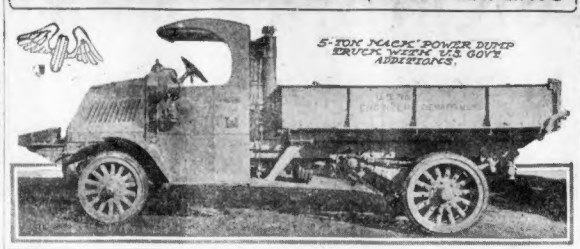
A big melodrama of the stage, in the ample field of the camera it should be magnified in power and in appeal.

Indirectly, the play is a shaft thrown at conditions of maladministrations of justice prevalent in our present system.

LANCASTER THEATRE

The bill at the Lancaster Theatre for the first half of the week promises unusually good film entertainment. In the William Fox production, "The Moral Law," Gladys Brockwell is pictured in a dual role. It is a story of international intrigue concerning two sisters of widely variant characters who move in a series of exciting episodes. The other photoplay will be "Whims of Society," picturing Ethel Clayton in an emotional role. The Thursday change of bill will bring "Pals-Up Sal," picturing Dorothy Dalton, and "Her Country's Call," picturing Mary Miles Minter.

ONE OF UNCLE SAM'S EFFICIENCY EXPERTS



WAR DEMONSTRATES MOTOR TRUCK'S UTILITY

"Never has the utility of the motor truck as a means of all around transportation been so thoroughly demonstrated as it has since the entry of the United States into the war," asserts C. P. Rockwell, Nash distributor for New England.

"So strongly has the need of releasing every available freight and express car for government use been made apparent that every pressure has been brought to bear upon business men to substitute trucks for rail shipments wherever possible.

"It is due, in great part, to the above reasons that the demand for Nash trucks has increased so rapidly within the past few months. Our one-ton and two-ton rear-drive units are particularly well fitted to meet the present-day hauling problems, and the Nash Quad, which drives, brakes and steers on all four wheels, has proved exceptionally valuable, particularly in sections where bad roads predominate."

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE

William S. Hart, one of the most popular of movie stars, will appear at the Castle Square Theatre during the first half of next week in his latest picture, "Blue Blazes Rawden," which tells a spirited tale of pioneer life.

RECORD CROWDS ATTENDING AUTO SHOW

Tremendous Sales Business Done by All Dealers in Cars

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

The largest crowd of the week filled the spacious halls of the Mechanics Building yesterday and it has been stated that if the same number attend the shay today the record made last year, which was the largest attendance on record of any Boston show, will be beaten.

Not only have the people been coming to the show in big bands, but the number of sales made has been extraordinary. The reports that have been coming in from both passenger car and truck dealers have been so large as to seem almost incredible but the cheaf of orders in the dusk is the answer to the doubtful ones, and when anyone says that the dealers this year have not done a tremendous business there is some ulterior motive behind the statement.

The results of the show this week only go to prove that the people of this country are ready to buy what our big industries have to offer, and they are buying motor cars because the automobile today is one of the most essential requisites of modern business efficiency and is just as important in the daily routine of the world as any other artery of transportation.

* * *

So successful has been the two-power-range idea as worked out in the Peerless eight-cylinder motor that its manufacturers this year announce an even more perfected type of two-power-range motor with more emphasis laid on the loafing range as well as on the sporting range. The motor also is still featured by its extraordinary quiet operation and easy control.

A loafing range for ordinary driving and a sporting range for brute power and speed—these are the two elements that have made the Peerless motor so much talked about. They express pointedly the unusual flexibility, great stamina and excessive power of the car. Incidentally, the wide range of activities of this motor are conductive to economy.

It is obvious that the practical advantage of the high-speed multiple cylinder motor are realized on the road only when the entire car mechanism is so designed that a strong, even-motor pull is available at all speeds. The Model 56 chassis and the Model 56, eight-cylinder Peerless motor are designed and balanced to bring about this much-desired condition. With this as a starting point, proper fuel supply is furnished to the motor by a two-stage carburetor, having one set of jets for car speeds up to approximately 45 miles an hour and another set that is opened automatically when the car advances beyond that speed.

* * *

"There were many new buyers, that is, people who are preparing to purchase their first motor car, at the Boston automobile show. It seems to me that there never has been so large a proportion," said C. S. Henshaw, president of the Henshaw Motor Co. at the, Dodge Brothers car exhibit in Mechanics Building. "They have been coming ever since the show opened, and we have a larger number of names than ever before of those who have shown sufficient interest in the Dodge Brothers car to wish to learn more about it after the show is over. Some of them have said that they intend to buy right away and a great many undoubtedly will buy within the next two or three months.

"These new buyers, or many of them, are unlike the bulk of the prospective purchasers we have encountered in other years. They appear to be working people and I have been curious to find out about several who have left their names with me. This superficial examination has revealed that these buyers I have in mind have come into the class of motor car purchasers through the prosperity brought to them by the war.

One man, who manufactured in a small way before the war, has become a sub-contractor on large government orders; another is employed at high pay in the Victory plant at Squantum, a third is making previously unheard of wages in connection with the production of munitions. And they are proposing to buy motor cars because they feel that they will be an aid to them in saving time, also in conserving their health in this period of long hours and constant application to their work."

NEW ENGLAND VELIE MEN MET THIS WEEK

Velie dealers of New England will hold their annual meeting at the Copley Square Hotel this week. F. E. Bradfield, sales manager of the Velie Motors Corporation, will discuss existing conditions in the trade, and tell of Velie's future plans. Mr. Bradfield comes direct from a trip through the South and West, and will have much to say of the wonderful business which is being enjoyed by dealers in those sections. H. J. Wheelock, advertising manager, gave an illustrated talk on Velie advertising plans; and E. R. Gardner, truck sales manager, told of Velie truck sales and of the Velie co-operation in war work.

NEW STRAIGHT-LINE ON STUDEBAKER BODIES

Studebaker has brought out an entirely new line of body styles for 1918. The new cars are featured with a gracefully rounded radiator, from which the hood and body are molded in straight-line effect, the seven-passenger six having an additional touch of elegance by a neatly beveled edge entirely around the body.

The fenders on all models are oval and fitted with large aprons, so fashioned that they blend well into the general design. The six-syllinder five-passenger and seven-passenger are mounted on a 126-inch and 135-inch wheel base respectively, while the four-cylinder five-passenger is 112 inches.

OLYMPIAN MODEL SHOW IN BALCONY IS UNIQUE

The handsome Olympian model which is shown in the space of the Olympian Motor Car Co. on the balcony is unique.

The long, racy looking body is mounted on a 114-inch wheel base chassis and with the high hood and double cowl the car can be favorably classed with those selling at several hundred dollars more than its modest price.

The Olympian factory planned this model as "the biggest small car on the market." While possessing unusual lightness it was designed with the one idea of giving it more strength and durability than any other medium priced car. Special stress has been made to give superior riding qualities, and it is said that this car is one of the finest riding cars on the market in its class. Women are especially interested in the car on account of the remarkable simplicity in operation.

The management of the company here has been placed with A. R. Goodman who represented the Olympian factory in the past as Eastern District manager.

No Doubt About It

Next Season Fur Prices Will Be Much Higher

The present situation in the Fur market is indeed critical.

At the present time the entire world looks to America as the source of supply for the greater part of Fur requirements. But owing to the very severe weather and the fact that trappers have been employed in more remunerative occupations, America's 1917 and 1918 Fur catch has been very much under normal.

In a recent big sale of Fur in an American market the quantity sold and price obtained far exceeded all previous records in furdom. This tabulation clearly shows that the principal staple Furs have advanced tremendously.

Skunk advanced in price 45%, Raccoon 40% and American Muskrat 40%. These are the three most staple furs in American markets. Silver Foxes advanced 50%, Marmots 50%, Beaver 100%.

These figures emphasize the importance of the sale. The savings based on next season's prices average at about 1-3; some are at savings as much as 1-2. Buy Now.

FULLERTON SWEET ON BROWNS

Loss of Ernie Koob May Prove Serious Handicap to St. Louis Team

By HUGH FULLERTON.

There is one bit of hard luck in the outlook for the St. Louis Browns the coming season. Ernie Koob, the corking little left-hander, probably will not be with the team. He is trying for the aviation service, and is of draft age and in the first call.

Shocker and Cullop, secured from New York, Loudermilk, the long string bean who has promised so much and done so little, comes back from Columbus and with Sotheron, Rogers and Davenport, will form the first line of defence.

Gallia, secured from Washington in the Lavan deal, may help. There is a fellow named Houck, drafted from the Coast League, who is highly touted, and Wright and Molyneaux, two college pitchers who were shook out by the Browns last Fall, may be of some assistance.

LEFTY LEIFIELD BACK AGAIN.

Let us not forget, either, that Lefty Leifield is with us once more—due to stage a comeback.

Lefty is a veteran, but one of the wisest old heads in the business.

He was supposed to be all through, but he went into the Association and, even in that "Two League" (meaning two games per day) he pitched excellent ball and showed a lot of stuff he was supposed to have lost.

He will not be able to pitch a great number of games, but he will win a number and he will be of immense help in two ways—in assisting Jones with the younger pitchers and in helping to maintain the harmony on the team.

Leifield is a good man to have on a team for the good influence he will exert, and for his wide experience.

WEAK ON PITCHERS.

The team must develop additional pitching strength if it expects consistent winning, and Jones must, with that pitching staff, average more runs per game than his team seems capable of doing.

Jones is a scientific run getter—"one run at a time" manager—and his teams usually make more runs per hit than any rival.

With airtight pitching, Jones could hold the Browns up in the race all the way by such tactics, but he does not appear to have the airtight pitchers.

Shocker is noted for his ability to beat Cleveland and so is Gallia, whose specialty with Washington was to beat the Ohio outfit. Koob was the one man on Jones' staff who appeared to have something on the White Sox.

He troubled the champions a lot last year and probably will again. Davenport is a glutton for work, and really a top pitcher.

The team did not score runs enough back of him last season to win many and he scattered his victories.

ALL UP TO CULLOP.

The promise lies in Cullop. This fellow really ought to be a great pitcher—yet he wasn't with the Yankees.

There are reports that he was not skilfully handled there, and, in fact, the Yank pitchers all complained of Donovan's handling of working pitchers.

That is the team—a team that ought to average close to three runs a game on his hitting and base running, and which does not, as a rule, figure to hold the opposing teams below three and a quarter runs a game.

It is lainly up to Jones either to make a defense that will stand or change methods and send his team out after runs in bunches from out of the one-at-a-time game.

In the next, we'll take up a couple of the fast threatening teams.

FULTON AND DEMPSEY MAY BOX FOR SAMMIES

San Diego, Cal., March 8.—Billy McMahon, local promoter, has wired Fred Fulton and Jack Dempsey offering them 50 per cent. of the gross receipts and all expenses to box here for the benefit of the Camp Kearney Athletic Fund. Dempsey and Fulton are said to have expressed willingness to perform for the Sammies.

The bout would be held in the stadium, which seats 50,000 people, with soldiers admitted for half price.

New York, March 9.—Fred Fulton is to be offered a chance to meet Jack Dempsey at eight-round bout at Atlantic City. Jack Bulger, New York fight promoter, has left for St. Louis to put the proposition up to Fulton's manager. The bout will be staged Easter week provided terms can be arranged with the big Manxeotlan.

Newton High annexed the championship of the Interscholastic Hockey League by defeating Brookline High, of the Arena, 2-0. The rival rooters staged a near riot between halves. McGILL SEVEN TO BATTLE ARENAS

HOW TEAMS LINE UP.

ARENA.		McGILL UNIVERSITY.

MacNeil, c.		c., Bohan
Synott, r.c.		r.c., Mooney
Hughes, r.w.		r.w., Gallery
Nowell, c.p.		c.p., Cully

Storey, g.		g., Dooner

Playing three twenty-minute periods, the Arena Hockey Club and McGill University of Montreal clash tonight at the Boston Arena. As this will be the first time that an Arena seven has played against McGill, the local seven is out to show the Canadians that they are of sufficient calibre to secure a permanent berth on the McGill schedule.

From the showing made against the Navy, McGill appears to be a stronger offence than the Arena, but the defence of the local team is far superior to that of the visiting aggregation.

Burt Nowell, Spencer Martin and Frank Storey are playing a wonderfully effective article of hockey and due to their desire to show at their best this evening they will display a tighter defense that they have this season.

The failure of the Arena seven to score more goals of late has been due to the fact that the boys have not played in cold rinks. With Don MacNeil in centre ice this fault will be rectified.

The McGill seven will not have the edge on the local boys on the wings, Leo Hughes and Willard Rice will show the Canadians how the wing positions are played in the "States."

Captain Teddy Bohan and Pat Rooney are the forwards of the McGill seven, who are to be given special attention by the Arena.

Like Nowell and Martin of the Arena seven, Jim Cully and Bill Hughes are giants. Cully is the heaviest man on the McGill team and also one of the fastest. Both of these boys played a fine game against the Navy.

"Paw" Dooner, the former Loyola College star, will again be in the nets for McGill.

FORMER EXETER STAR NEW HERO AT HARVARD

Krogness, former Exeter star, provided the bulk of the fireworks at the mid-Winter track meet at Harvard, winning three firsts, a second and a third.

Former schoolboy team mates, Denis O'Connell and Jim Nally, took the twenty-lap and seven-lap races, respectively. It was also a field day for the freshmen, the first class men winning but two of the nine events which were concluded.

Krogness fairly walked away with the 40-yard dash and 45-yard hurdles for freshmen; jogged home in the lead in the 45-yard hurdles free-for-all, in which he ran from scratch; barely lost first place in the broad jump and his jump of 5 feet 8 inches was the best, although [illegible] ive him only third. Page, the [illegible] eight-inch handicap.

Douglass won the 9-yard dash. He had a handicap of two yards.

Linder, in the shotput, and Stevens, in the 35-pound weight, were the only upper class men scoring. The inter-class and inter-dormitory relays will be run off next week.

VERMONT COLLEGE BOY TO JOIN CUBS

Pitt A. A. Team Keeps Going

The Boston Navy Yard hockey seven lost its opening game to the undefeated Pittsburgh A. A. team at Pittsburgh, 5-1. McCormick, Formick and Skilton were the tally getters.

Bunts and Bingles.

GEORGE FOSTER and Sam Agnew remain out of the Sox fold. Buck Herzog, Ed Konetchy and Ivy Rudolph are the chief members of the Braves out in the wet.

PIP YOUNG, second sacker, has signed with the Tigers. Oscar Vitt, same as a year ago, is a holdout. So is Babe Spencer.

PAT MORAN will leave from New York next Friday with the Phillies. They are going to the Jacksonville camp by boat.

NORMAN (HOOKS) WITT, with the Pirates last year, is in the aviation corps at San Diego, Cal.

ROBINSON WINS OVER RIVERS AT C.A.C.

The George Robinson-Joe Rivers series was revived at the Commercial A. C., the numbers being put on when Joe Demerise cancelled. The dusky Cambridge boy and the husky Gloucester battler had it out in ten of their customary rip-roaring rounds, with Robinson, as usual, drawing the official award.

Mike Paulson outpointed Harry Condon all the way in their featherweight bout. What's more, the St. Paul scrub got over quite a spot of stinging leads, and Harry was badly jarred at the end.

Pal Reed won on a foul from Joe White in four rounds. 'Twas Pal's last fight here, he said. Hereafter he will be busy scrapping "over there," having a hunch that he is to be dispatched across at an early date.

Tommy Carson and Young Bushes opened the show by going eight fairly breezy rounds to a dead heat.

The club has arranged another tip-top card for next week with Paddy Owens of Cambridge versus Paul Demers of New Bedford, Dave Powers of Malden opposed to Young Goulu of Woonsocket and Panama Joe Gans meeting George Robinson of Cambridge.

HERMAN-LYNCH BATTLE SOUGHT BY NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Ct., March 9.—Vincent Relma, local fight promoter, has offered Pete (Kid) Herman, bantam champion, $1,000 to meet Joe Lynch of New York in a twenty-round bout for the title here the first week in April. Lynch is to receive 60 per cent. after all expenses are paid.

Herman has secured permission from the Navy Department to engage in "several bouts" before going into actual service.

BRIEF BITS OF BOXING

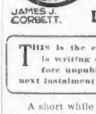
IT WILL be Harry Carlson and Johnny Dundee at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday night. Frankie Tyson, Bert and Eddie Wallace have been matched for the March show.

GEORGE FREEMAN is willing to let Johnny Burkley go against Tommy Regan, but thinks it only fair that the East Boston boy should first dispose of Dan McCormick and Young Saxon, fellow townsmen, before drawing the Buckley bowling.

THE DOUGLAS A. A. of Chelsea puts on an out-and-out championship battle Monday night. It's the fly-weight title that will be at stake, with Johnny Dooley of New York, American champion, mingling with Paddy Lewis of Cambridge. The big number will be refereed by Johnny Wilson and Leo Houck.

BROCKTON'S COME-BACK in boxing has the managers happy. There was a tuneup, as they say in the side-show world, for the Carlson-Tello fracas, Thursday night.

"JOHN L." AS I KNEW HIM"



JAMES J. CORBETT.

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN

THIS is the eighteenth chapter of a series which James J. Corbett is writing on "John L. as I Knew Him." It relates many heretofore unpublished incidents in the life of the great warrior. The next instalment will appear Monday.

A short while after the articles for his match with Jake Kilrain had been signed John L. surprised the sporting world by doing what he vowed he never would do: He hired a trainer.

The big champion at last had come to the realization that the days were gone when he could jump into the ring totally unprepared and pound his way to victory.

He had awakened to the fact that late hours, dissipation and the pride of condition in Harvard K. Fox saw in that. Almost from the days that Sullivan had become champion, Fox devoted his efforts to attempting to uncover a man who could whip Sullivan.

Fox always figured that Sullivan was something of a "shine" as a title holder.

He brought at least a half dozen men to this country and pitted them against the mighty Bostonian—but each and every one had gone down to defeat.

But in Kilrain the famous sportsman felt that he was to realize his ambition for the dethroning of Sullivan. And certainly there was real basis for Fox's confidence.

Kilrain, as huge and as powerful a physical specimen as John L. had compiled a great record through 1886, 1887 and 1888, and stood out as the most formidable Sullivan foe of that era.

LAST BARE KNUCKLE FIGHT.

The original plan to stage the big bout "somewhere in Mississippi on July 8, 1889," was carried out. But with difficulty Governor Lowry of that State used every means in his power to halt the fight.

He classified bare knuckle fighting, with strict London prize ring rules prevailing, as a "most brutal form of sport."

And finally the State forces loose in an effort to stop the staging of the contest. But to no avail.

However, the opposition by the authorities of that State and the constant "hounding" by officials of other States of the bare knuckle fighters, caused John L. to make this resolve:

"Win or lose, my battle with Kilrain will be my last as a bare knuckle fighter. After that affair is over I'll fight Marquis of Queensbury rules—or not at all.

SCHOOL FLYERS CLASH TODAY IN FINALS

The final events in the Regimental School Track and Field meets were decided at the East Armory this afternoon.

Captain Bart Machia of Roxbury High, was picked to win the 440, but will have to travel at a fast gait to prevent Calvin of Dorchester, Nolan of East Boston and Kennedy of Latin from breasting the tape in front of him.

As a senior harrier, James of Dorchester, had a class by himself. He gave a fine demonstration in the finals, going a mile this afternoon, may be one of the few record breakers of this year's meet.

Dorchester Commercial each had twenty-three athletes in the finals. However, Roxbury won the meet by a wide margin.

ATHLETIC NEWS NOTES

WANAKEE, 10-yard dash man, came within one-fifth of a second of breaking the record in the semi-finals of the Regimental Games and was expected to clean up easy today. He is a speedy youngster and will be seen to-day to establish a new mark for the short distance.

THE FINAL in the "600" was put over because Winchester of Commerce failed to appear. Winchester was a sure winner and Skip Sherlock was very lucky to get permission from the other tutors for the postponement.

MILLER, A Junior English High dash artist, tied for second in his trial heat. He was closely watched this afternoon.

FRED HOWLETT, star of English, had the call in the intermediate "220." There were some good boys entered, but Howlett seemed to have a little something on his field.

BOSTON NAVY BOYS STARS AT BIG MEET

Philadelphia, March 8.—Probably at no other time in the history of track athletics has there been anything put together to such a show as was held at the Second Regiment Armory, when the Meadowbrook Club held its public annual indoor track and field games. Records were broken, new ones established, new records were made, handicap at stroke, four-lap relay, open mile event handicap and consolation mile handicap, while all existing records were equaled in the junior 1,000-yard relay and the 440 yard handicap.

In the open handicap 440-yard dash, one of Friday night's headliners, a new record of 50 feet 6½ inches in actual put of 51 feet 6½ inches, in the 1,000-yard relay the Navy team established a new record, which also covered the distance in 1 minute 10 seconds, 11 1-5 seconds faster than the time made last year by Company D.

Myers of Dartmouth and Sweeney of Yale, both broke the pole vault record, Myers by 2 inches over last year, by 1½ inches. Both men went over the bar at the initial height of 12 feet 6 inches, and on the finish-off Myers took the title from Sweeney by one inch.

The Boston Navy Yard Team won the one-mile navy championship relay, with Philadelphia Navy Yard second, and Pelham Training Station third.

Erdman of Pennsylvania, running from scratch, also equalled a record, when he went over the high sticks in the 70-yard hurdle race in 10 flat, time of 6 seconds. This time equals the record made by John Mayhew, in Boston, March 2, 1907.

BABE RUTH AND HOWLEY LEAD SOX AWAY

By HENRY L. DAILY.

This was getaway day for the Red Sox.

At 12:30 this noon the first squad of players left South Station on the Iron Country Limited for Hot Springs, Arkansas. It will arrive at the Spa Monday morning.

The party, in charge of Secretary Edward F. Riley, consisted of Babe Ruth, who has been wintering near the home of Waycross, Ga.; Manager Barrow, Coach Mike Ryan, reporting from the ranks of the players, T. J. Howley, who has been with the Red Sox and the newspapermen, including the writer of the AMERICAN, as special correspondent.

While the first party included but one active ball player, Babe Ruth, other members of the Sox will be picked up en route.

BOSSES TO FLIMM ABOARD.

Among those who will join the party at Atlanta and be entertained en route as a private function will be Bossy Flimm, who will be the guest of honor at a luncheon at the Piedmont Hotel. Flimm will be met at the Union Station by Manager Barrow, Walter Schang, Walter Mayer and J. Weldon Wyckoff.

Secretary Howley has sent his party forward from Atlanta so as to report at the Vapor Vatino Manor. Harry was delayed in his arrival at Hot Springs, but will surely be there on St. Patrick's day.

Carl Mays will be the last player to be picked up by the special. He is to board that train at Little Rock, Ark.

McINNIS STILL IN TOWN.

John (Stuffy) McInnis of Gloucester, the first baseman who has been a pastry, the writ arrives at the camp March 15.

The other players who will arrive on the above date are Amos Strunk, Richard Hoblitzell, Ernie Shore, Ernie Agnew, Jack Smith, George Whiteman and Fergie Hooper. Dick Hobitzell, who is in the draft, will not report.

March 19, when Manager Ed Barrow calls the roll, many players will respond to the call. From that date on, it will be a fight for places and a fair look into the future of the Red Sox infield, pitching staff and outfield will be visible.

Although many conditions are made as to who will play third base this year, it looks as though an absolute fact Maisels will hold down the bag.

NEW CATCHER COMING.

It is also certain President Frazee has a trump card up his sleeve he has not disclosed as yet in regard to an infielder. It is also safe to assume a surprise is in store for the fans when the season opens in April.

It was a happy party that left South Station this noon and one that can expect the arrangements of the itinerary to perfection and has not forgotten the minutest detail.

Jimmy Walsh Returns to Town and Goes on Duty at the Boston Navy Yard

Jimmy Walsh, one of the Red Sox 1917 outfielders, has returned to Boston from Camp Devens and is now on duty at the Navy Yard.

Last month Walsh enlisted as machinist's mate. He has received his papers and passed out his flannel trapping.

Walsh expects to play on Jack Barry's ball club. Like the rest of the "old guard" he sort of regrets he won't be seen in the game the coming season, but is glad to get an insight on all the moves at the Boston yard and expects to hit bat at a .400 clip when next season comes.

REPORT ROBERTSON TO JOIN NAVY TEAM

New York, March 8.—With Dave Robertson, star outfielder of the Washington following the announcement from Norfolk, Va., that he will join the navy yard team there, it is believed here today that Manager Moran will depend on Ross Young to fill Robertson's shoes.

Without will be kept for utility outfielder, and Moran indicated today that he is not worrying over whether the Chicago signs his contract or not.

LESLIE MANN RETURNS TO PERFORM WITH CUBS

Houston, Tex., March 9.—Leslie Mann has been dismissed as physical instructor at the navy camp near here, and will join the Chicago Cubs at their training camp in Pasadena, Cal. Mann batted .272 last season. He is the husband of Calif player to sign.

Catcher Hill Killifer mailed in his signed contract. Claude Hendrix also sent in his and Pitcher Alexander is now the only important hold-out.

ADVANCE GUARD OF DODGERS GET AWAY

New York, March 9.—Several members of the Brooklyn Dodgers who live along the Atlantic border will start for Hot Springs, Ark., today. Among the players are Marquard, Cheney, Holmes, Russell and Plitt and Catcher Otto Miller. Manager Robinson will join the players at Baltimore.

COLUMBIA VS. YALE FOR WATER TITLE

New York, March 9.—Columbia and Yale water polo teams will meet here tonight in a match on which will hinge the intercollegiate championship. Each college has won five games.

BILL KILLIFER COMES THROUGH FOR CUBS

Chicago, March 9.—Cubs officials and fans breathed a sigh of relief here today when it was announced that Hill Killifer, star catcher purchased from the Phillies with strenuous opposition from the Boston Braves, terms with the Cubs' management and will report at once.

Killifer, according to reports from Los Angeles, had threatened to quit baseball and enter business. Killifer will join the Cubs in their training camp at Pasadena.

This Day in Our History

THIS is the anniversary of the famous battle between the Merrimac and the Monitor in 1862. The former an ironclad, was sinking the Union frigates when the Monitor appeared and disabled her off Hampton Roads after she had destroyed the Congress and Cumberland.

The Shining Great Dipper

THE Great Dipper is now seen in the evening east of the pole of the heavens, while Cassiopeia, marked by a W-shaped figure of five stars, the W standing on end, appears west of the pole. The Pole Star is not at the true pole, but a little over a degree away.

HOME AND THE MOVIES

Loretto Lynch Makes a Plea for Them as Educational

By Loretto C. Lynch,

Instructor War Cookery N. Y. Evening High School for Women

AND now comes a letter to me from a very earnest, conscientious woman, who believes that the motion picture (pestilence has "spoiled" home life. "There was a time," she writes me, "when the family gathered around the fireside and read the classics, or perhaps they read the Bible or sang hymns or played checkers, but now it is so different. Each one, when dinner is over, hastens to the local moving picture house just as often as he or she can afford to go. Won't you please write something about this?"

Gladly will I. And I'm going to suppose, of course, that your local moving picture house shows only the best in motion pictures. Do you remember the time not so far back when in your very town the girl who made a misstep in her early youth was denied the privileges of both wifehood and motherhood?

Or can you recall the case of Joe Brown, who spent a couple of years in jail, although even a few folks never believed him guilty of embezzling? Of course you remember how he had to leave town because he couldn't get a job.

Stayed at Home

And yet that all happened when all the family stayed at home almost every evening for lack of somewhere to go. Not only your family, but the Joneses and the Smiths and the Greens all stayed at home, too.

But now—well, somehow or other folks don't have the standards they used to have. Women that took a single wrong step are tolerated. Folks not only speak kindly of them, but some even praise them as fine housekeepers and devoted mothers. And men with prison records have been given a chance to work in that new factory even when their records were known.

And "old maids," once considered a mere superfluity in the household, are often looked upon now as silent heroines. And I attribute a large percentage of this broadened viewpoint and simple tolerance to the local motion picture house.

The masterful motion picture makes folks think. The Simon Legree man gets a perspective of himself as he sits in the audience and sees his prototype on the screen.

Stingy Man

And the stingy man learns how his wife has the butcher and the baker and the gown maker present bills larger than they should be so that she manages to get the little personal spending money he denies her.

And somehow or other each of that audience returns home with a broader viewpoint, a more tolerant attitude.

Yes, the motion picture house has wrought many changes in the community. And even if it does take the erstwhile stay-at-home family out of the home for a few evenings a week, the members of that family return home more tolerant. All round, they are much better for having visited the movies.

Uncle Sam's Girl-Shower

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1918, by International News Service.

WHAT you goin' to do about them, Uncle Sam, your eager little daughters of your own good red blood, of your own true blue, of your own white honor, who are falling in on you at Washington at YOUR call, to be your clerks and help you win the war? You goin' to let them curl up on park benches with their chins in their muffs to spend their first night in your great white town? You goin' to let them lean on a lamp-post bartended with grips and bags and knitting bags all of a cool Spring night? You don't believe one ever had to do that, do you? You goin' to let them run into the barbed wire entanglement of a glaring apartment house sign that says in black-on-white, "Apartments to let. No dogs, no children, and no YOUNG LA DIES?" Where you goin' to "set up against the lovely blue of your soft Southern air a barracks, as you do for your other soldiers?

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

In cooking nearly every kind of fish the addition of fat is generally advisable. Steaming is the most economical method of cooking, and this can be easily effected in a covered basin, fitted into the top of a saucepan filled with boiling water and placed over heat. When the fish is steamed, if the bones are extracted, they and the skin should be stowed down for stock or soup.

Established 50 Years

Puss in Boots Jr.

By David Cory

By DAVID CORY

IT was very lucky that Mrs. Ulysses had that reliable graphophone on board ship, for if it hadn't been for the music I guess those tired sailors would never have reached land. For they were so tired rowing that when they landed on the beautiful green island I mentioned in the story before this, they had to lie down on the sand and go to sleep for twenty-three minutes. But if they had known what they were going to find on the island I'm sure they wouldn't have slept at all, but would have jumped back into the boat and rowed away.

You see, this island was owned by a wicked magician, who was a daughter of the Sun. Yes, she had a magic wand and when she touched anyone with it he turned into a pig. Wasn't that dreadful.

Now, Mr. Ulysses wasn't going to take any chances this time, although of course, he didn't know what you and I know. So he went forward with some of his men in charge of an officer to find out who lived on the island, and by and by they came to a palace, and all of a sudden they were surrounded by lions and tigers. But these animals were very tame, for they had once been men and had been changed into animals by the wicked daughter of the Sun.

And then through the palace windows came the sound of a sweet voice. So the officer sailor called out and the daughter of the Sun came out of her palace and invited them in and gave them a wonderful dinner. And after that she touched them with her wand, all except the sailor officer, who ran back to the ship. And, oh, dear me. All the sailors she touched with her magic wand turned into pigs, and she shut them up in sties and fed them on acorns and other things which pigs love.

And as soon as Mr. Ulysses heard the news he and Puss set out for the castle to rescue their friends, and on the way Puss met a little messenger boy named Mercury, who had wings on his feet to make him swift to deliver telegrams and boxes of candy, and when Puss told him what had happened that wise little messenger boy said he knew of a little plant that had a magic power, and he ran off and got a sprig and gave it to Puss.

And then Puss and Mr. Ulysses hurried up to the castle, and after he and Puss had dined with the daughter of the Sun, Puss touched her with the magic sprig, and said: "If you don't change our sailor boys back into their natural shapes, I'll kill you with my sword." And she was so frightened, because the magic sprig made her powerless, you know, to work further harm, that she went out and changed the sailors back into their natural forms.

And then she gave Mr. Ulysses some good advice and directed them to their home. For on the way there they had to pass some beautiful islands where lived a band of sea nymphs, who sang such lovely songs that sailors couldn't pass by without landing on the islands, which was surrounded by sharp rocks that broke their boats all to pieces.

And in the next story you shall hear what Mr. Ulysses did so as not to hear those lovely songs of the Sirens, which was the name of these cruel sea nymphs.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

They Must Decide.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My daughter is engaged. Her fiancé is in the draft. As he has not been examined yet, he doesn't know if he has to go, but he expects to be called soon.

They are thinking of getting married before he goes away.

And as I don't know what to advise them I am putting it up to you. So please advise me.

Sincerely,

A MOTHER.

OF course, you don't know what to advise them. No outsider can justifiably play Providence in such a case. But it seems to me that since your daughter's sweetheart has not yet been called for examination, their case is vastly different from those I am generally called on to consider; viz, cases in which the soldier lad is already in active service at camp. If their love is well established and sincere, and they feel ready to face the long separation and loneliness and risk and sacrifice that such marriage entails, it would be safe to proceed. But a mere engagement is a safer tie for the girl, and will still hold them to each other if they are naturally faithful and loyal.

Caring for the Child's Clothes

By RITA STUYVESANT

ARE you making over your clothes? Have you forgotten about the children who outgrow their clothes long before the clothes are worn out? It seems when mother has just arranged a good supply of underwear for the youngsters she has to begin all over again to readjust them. There are many practical suggestions that women of experience have to offer other mothers with children from two to eight years of age.

A woman with several small children, whom I know, has learned many "tricks" in making-over their undbrwear to fit rapidly-growing bodies. The two youngest still wear "night drawers," and recently she showed me how she fixes them when they become too short.

She says (and knows) that there is only one remedy if night drawers have become short through shrinkage or by being outgrown, and that is to make them longer. To do this she attaches foot gaiters to the bottom of the legs of the drawers. These foot gaiters are cut in two pieces and seamed together (resembling socks).

When the night drawers are also short in the body part she cuts them around the waist and inserts a broad belt.

For the little girls there are princess slips. If these become too short a width of embroidery edging is added to the bottom or sometimes a simple flounce of tucked lawn. The tucks are let out as necessary. Occasionally the top of the "slip" becomes too snug for broadening chests. Then she cuts the shoulders off in a straight line below the armholes. The top is finished with shoulder straps like a "grown-ups" camisole.

Instead of bending, a casing of self material with washable tape run through is very practical. Petticoats with waists attached are fixed on the same principle as little brother's night drawers. They are cut through the middle, around the waist and a belt retain.

Small "princess slips" that have become hopelessly short are converted into "envelope chemises" for the hot days. The little girls love these; they feel so delightfully like their big sisters. To make the "chemise" a small "flap" of material is sewed to the lower part of the back of the "princess slip" and snapped to the front with snaphooks. This makes cunning short panties that are well liked.

If you are a mother with small kiddies who shoot up out of underclothes before you can realize it, you will do well to follow the suggestions of this thrifty woman, who always keeps her children nicely clothed on a very small allowance.

"The Eyes in the Wall"

Copyright, 1918, by International News Service.

IMPULSIVELY Doris ran to the bed and an instant later was sobbing over Verda. Ramsay pulled her back and looked at Verda's eyes. They opened, but stared dully, uncomprehensively. A bottle of laudanum on the chair furnished the clew. He shook her, trying to keep her awake.

"Keep her awake," he ordered; "I will get help."

Doris attempted to shake Verda into conscious sense, and for some minutes failed. Then Verda's eyes lost their stare and she seemed to be aware of Doris. She moved her lips and Doris bent eagerly to catch what she was saying.

The door of the room opened softly. Instantly Verda's eyes lost their foolish stare. She reached up her arms and clung to Doris' neck tenderly.

The Hidden Hand advanced a step.

Doris turned and cried out. She broke Verda's clasp and leaped to the other side of the room, the Hidden Hand after her. She doubled back and hurled the chair at him, gaining the door. Then she fled down one flight of creaking steps and darted into an empty room. She had barely time to shoot the bolt, as the Hidden Hand crashed against the door. Doris ran to the window and looked down into a courtyard two stories below.

Ramsay, returning from the drug store, was rounding the corner of the courtyard when Doris saw him. She called down to him, frantically, and he heard her. But at that moment several of the emissaries of the Hidden Hand, who were lurking behind a fence, rushed into the courtyard and flung themselves on him. Ramsay, taken unawares, went down in the flying heap. He struck out, gaining his feet and went down again in the rush.

From the window, Doris looked on helpless. Behind her, the half rotten door was bending under the impact of the gauntlet of the Hidden Hand. Already a panel splintered, and the steel-shod hand searched for the bolt. It failed to locate it and with a sw...ew, beginning again its smashing and ripping at the door.

To Doris the peril seemed hopeless of any solution but the one she dreaded. To jump from the second floor meant at least an injury that might result in some permanent hurt. Yet there was no other way. The door behind her was splintered too far to hold much longer.

She mounted the window ledge, waiting as long as she dared before attempting the leap. Below in the courtyard, Ramsay was fighting with the strength born of desperation. Doris' courage rose as she saw him fling one of the attackers clean over his head and pull his pistol. He shot and another went down. The rest fled. Now, if Ramsay could but reach her in time. She cried out to him.

Behind her, the door gave way. The Hidden Hand paused on the threshold waving the gauntlet, but advancing no further.

MARRIED LIFE

Helen and Carrie Get a Lesson From Their Children

Copyright, 1918, International News Service.

"WELL, well, here she is now, come and see your Aunt Carrie, Winifred, and here's Roy: speak to your cousin, Roy, that's a nice boy. My, it certainly does seem as if she grows from week to week, Helen."

"Oh, she does," assented Helen merrily. She's springing up just like a weed these days." Helen was taking advantage of Carrie's unusually genial mood. It was not often that Carrie was anything but critical, and overbearing. This afternoon she was purring like a large cat, because she had just bought a new Spring suit which suited her very well and which Helen had admired extravagantly.

"I haven't bought anything new to wear in a month," said Helen, certain that this would please Carrie.

Needles Clicked.

"I see," and Carrie's needles clicked as she looked up at Helen. Helen had a lot of turquoise blue yarn in her lap and was knitting industriously.

Carrie said nothing, and for a few moments there was silence while the two women knitted industriously. Helen's mind flew to the dinner. She wondered if Carrie would like the simple meal Mary was preparing.

Carrie herself always served such elaborate meals whenever Helen and Warren visited them and was so particular about certain of her likes and dislikes that Helen always fidgeted herself into a case of nerves whenever Carrie came to the house for dinner. The silence was becoming uncomfortable, when suddenly Carrie's eight-year-old boy burst into the room, followed by Winifred.

"Mother, I told Mary I could have some bread and sugar, and she wouldn't give me any. I'm hungry."

"She didn't say she wouldn't give it to you," Winifred interrupted, "she told you to ask your mother."

Carrie looked up quickly, and Helen said sweetly, "Of course you shall have a piece of bread if you like, Roy. Winifred, you may tell Mary to give your cousin a slice of bread with some sugar. No, dear," as she saw the mute request in Winifred's eyes," you don't want to spoil your dinner, do you?"

Winifred did not, of course, she simply turned, and followed the teasing Roy out of the room.

"I told her," explained Helen, smiling, to Carrie, "that if she wanted to come to the table in the evening, she must be willing to do without anything in the afternoon, and she's a darling about it.

"You're to quiteclie in your ideas of bringing up children, Helen," Carrie returned. "What's the harm in giving the child a piece of bread when she is hungry?"

Better Without It.

"I think she is better without it."

"Meaning, of course, that I am not right in allowing Roy to have it."

"Of course not, Carrie, I never thought anything of the kind," propitiated Helen quickly. But underneath she was proud of Winifred's self control, and certain that it was because of the difference between Winifred and Roy's behavior that Carrie had become so irritable. Certainly, if either of the two children were spoiled, it was not Winifred.

Watch for the next installment in this interesting series.

Seeking Enlightenment

A little agricultural village had been billed with "Lecture on Keats" for over a fortnight. The evening arrived at length, bringing the lecturer ready to discourse on the poet. The advertised chairman, taken ill at the last moment, was replaced by a local farmer. This worthy introduced the lecturer and terminated his remarks by saying, "And now, my friends, we shall soon all know what I pers...nally have wondered—what are Keats?"

TARS TO GIVE SERVICE CLUB SILK FLAG

Bluejackets Raise Money for Banner Among Pier Roster

By PAUL WHELTON.

Aboard the Receiving Ship, Commonwealth Pier, March 8—In recognition of the work being done for them at the Naval Service Club quarters, No. 15 Beacon street, the bluejackets of the receiving ship will present to the club a handsome Union Jack of silk and a gilded fleur-de-lis on which it will be flying in the breeze.

The money with which the flag was purchased was raised by voluntary subscription among the sailormen of the receiving ship after Chief Gunner Harry Shook of the "Bonaparte" Landing Detachment, Marine Corps, described the good work being done at the Naval Service Club in behalf of the sailors. All hands were roped into the Y. M. C. A. room, where Manliff mounted the platform and told of the work. Then some of the crew members to give some suitable gift to the club in consideration of their appreciation.

Subscriptions were made and when the total was figured up the amount of contributions that had on hand approximated $175, with which to purchase a flag.

The flag is strictly in accordance with navy regulations, measuring six feet on the hoist and 9.264 "on the fly." In the English language "hoist" is considered the width and "fly" to length. It is made of pure French silk material and will not show forty-eight silk hand-embroidered stars. The tassels are golden.

The presentation of the gift will be made at the Naval Service headquarters some time during the coming week. Chief Gunner Manliff will make the presentation address.

CAPTURED AYER SOLDIER UNDER WAR GUARD

Ernest Lawrenceson, Who Left Camp Jan. 18, Taken at Everett

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 9—Private Ernest Lawrenceson of Ingalls, a member of the machine gun company of the 302nd Infantry, who is alleged to have disappeared from the cantonment on January 18, was captured in Everett and brought back to his company. He is being kept under guard pending the disposition of his case.

Company G of "Boston Corp" is the prize company of the 302d Infantry. The regimentation of boat crews brought home the company boxers in a competition drill between the companies of the regiment, the final contest in which Captain Phillip H. Sheridan of Company D was awarded the prize.

Company G of Boston's corps acquitted itself well in recruiting, the record being set by Rigon Tashgian, who was responsible for the enlistment from the 34th company, 151st Depot Brigade.

The "Greeks" in the 7th battalion of the Depot Brigade are as good as gold as cooks, as the showing they made in their parade about the cantonment behind the brigade fife and drum corps the next noon marched with an added swing to the step and much favorable comment from those who saw them.

Although they have been in the army but a short time these men are rapidly rounding into soldierly shape and will soon be "over the hoist" and 9.264 "on the fly." In the English language "hoist" is considered the width and "fly" to length. It is made of pure French silk material and will not show forty-eight silk hand-embroidered stars. The tassels are golden.

The presentation of the gift will be made at the Naval Service headquarters some time during the coming week. Chief Gunner Manliff will make the presentation address.

PUFFS OF SMOKE

Editorial

One of the best examples of the great help instructive and judicious publicity has been in the war preparations of this country since the severing of diplomatic relations with the enemy, is the manner in which the drafters who went to Camp Devens in the last quota plunged into the life of the soldier.

Intelligently every man in the last quota had a clear idea of what he might expect in the army, and contrary to many of those in the initial draft, went through the preliminary routine confident they would be treated as human beings.

The majority of them had read in newspapers and other periodicals of the great work that was being done in the army camps throughout the country, and of the interest the government was taking in its soldiers.

What skepticism they may have previously entertained had been swept away by the thousands of stories that were printed about the lives of the men in the cantonments.

They knew what they were facing and were prepared for it. The government is now reaping the benefit.

Among the Boys at Camp Devens

Corporals Martin J. Donovan of Salem and Robert E. Kelly of Adams have been made sergeants to the 11th company since the severing of diplomatic relations with Germany by Brigadier-general William Weigel.

* * *

The following privates are made corporals in the same company: Edward Hall of Lynn, Carl Chilton of Richmond, Frank S. Mc-Cann of Medford, John D. Sanborn of Salem, Bert H. Windsor of Norwood, Polo Pelletier of Lowell, Frank Charles F. Venn of Woburn, Marshall Dewitt of Bridgewater, William Lamb of Fairfield, Ct., and Arthur E. Stone and Albert Lundgren of Salem.

* * *

Charles L. Sites of Holden has been appointed cook of the 19th Company of the Depot Brigade and the following privates will be his corporals: Harold E. Langley, Durham, N. H., Roswell J. Harvey of Bolton, Fred N. H. and C. L. Higginbottom, John H. Curtis and Edward A. Hopkins of Lawrence.

Sergeant John E. Reed and Private Irving J. Marthaver of the Machine Gun Company, 302d Infantry, were thrown from their horses during mounted drill on Saturday, the old Fifth gran broken in two places and was sent to the Base Hospital.

Private Marhaver received an injury to his right wrist.

AYER-TRAINED BOYS NOW AT FRONT

5,000 N. E. Soldiers Believed to Be in Service Abroad

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 9—Evidence of the rapidity with which the government war preparations are being pushed forward is contained in an announcement that approximately 25,000 troops, consisting of both enlisted and drafted men from New England, are playing their part in the overseas field army plan recently adopted by the War Department in France.

This does not include the 5,000 men of Yankee Division now in Camp Jordan, and the 5,000 others who were transferred from the Devens depot.

With the 2,500 men in the 149th regiment of Infantry, includes the old "Fighting Ninth," part of the "Dandy Fifth," and a full draftload from here, who are now in the trenches, the enlisted men in the Regular Army, Marine Corps and other branches of the service, the estimated total there are already more than 5,000 men from the New England states in service abroad.

The drain upon New England manhood during the 19 months of war has been so heavy that the Yankee Division, one of the country and to a large extent retains the confidence in the War Department. Both Major General Hodges and the other officers and men at Camp Bourchier.

Under the government plan of keeping together a large percentage of the men who come here in the last draft quotas, it will be seen at Camp Wadsworth, at Spartanburg, S. C., to fill up the vacancies in the Yankee regiments, formed out of the remnants of the old Fifth, Sixth and Eighth Massachusetts National Guard regiments.

The first Connecticut and the First Vermont regiments, and the Fifth Maine Heavy Artillery and the Ninth and New Hampshire infantry, have been transformed into the First Army Headquarters Troops.

The vacancies in the 76th division here are not extensive enough to be filled until after the arrival of the men in the cantonment depot. Sixteen men from this cantonment have gone, but it is known that the most important work in General Pershing's offensive plans.

SHIP DEMANDS BY HUTCHESON IGNORED

By JOHN L. MURRAY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, March 8—The Shipping Board has an ultimatum from William L. Hutcheson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, according to fuller details, the lack of which is holding up wooden ship production on the Pacific Coast, on condition that his demands be granted.

The ultimatum will be ignored, according to Shipping Board officials, who take the attitude that Hutcheson was eliminated from the shipbuilding problem three days ago by the action of the American Federation of Labor, which rejected his demands.

Instead of considering this offer, the Shipping Board will make an appeal direct to the men in the Hotel Westminster, on "The Psychology of Calm—Its Effect Upon Health, Happiness and Finances."

He brings into his discussion of the theme "Learning to Live in Cities" a wealth of experience in social work and the fruits of many years of platform speaking.

Discussing the experiment of city life, the gayness of the city people, immigration and its exploiting of city life, the moral advantage of the race and the inadequacy of law to the new problems of the city under democracies and movements which develop a new moral equipment; the probable future of cities in America, and the relation of city life to industrial and political movements and hopes.

Swami Parsmanda of India will lecture on "The Secret of Happiness" at the Chapel of the Vedanta Centre, No. 1 Gregory street, at 11 o'clock on Sunday.

FISH COMBINE INDICATED BY AGREEMENT

132 of 132 Captains Signed Contract to Control All Distributions Here

The existence of a "fish trust" was definitely disclosed by an agreement produced at the Federal inquiry signed by 132 of the 132 captains of fishing vessels. It is headed: "Guarantees and Agreements for the Control of the Fish Business."

That there was such an agreement among the captains was not definitely by the attorneys for the 41 dealers charged with violation of the Sherman Anti-trust law. After it was identified counsel declared it was locked up in the safe of the New England Fish Exchange and was not available.

The agreement was obtained by Examiner Matheson, who is taking testimony after Mr. Mitchson made a copy he returned it to the exchange.

At the end of last Tuesday's hearing the captain's agreement was noted, but it was expected to form the grounds for a more extended examination today of William K. Beardsley, manager of the Boston Fish Exchange, through whom the document was placed in evidence.

The three most important provisions are:

That no fish shall be engaged or written before actual sale or purchase is made.

That all dealers shall be obliged to take the same amount of fish they may cause to be set against their names at price agreed upon.

That fish are to be sold in a room and that no fish or any kind is to be sold on the wharf except for salting.

At Tuesday's hearing Mr. Beardsley stated that more than 75 per cent. of all fresh fish landed in Boston was sold through the New England Fish Exchange.

At the opening of the hearing Tuesday Edward Rogers, special assistant United States Attorney, introduced statistics showing that 50 per cent. of the total catch of fish, or all the haddock caught, used and consumed between the Hatteras and Buffalo was landed in this city.

President Butterfield's Request for $100,000 to Establish New Department at Amherst Ought to Be Granted as War Measure

President Butterfield of the State Agricultural College at Amherst is asking the Legislature for an extra appropriation of $100,000—$30,000 for salaries and maintenance and $70,000 for buildings—to enable the college to establish a new department for the agricultural education and training of women.

This is a bad year to ask for new appropriations, and $100,000 looks like a large sum to members of the Legislature, even though it means an addition of only about two cents to the State tax rate. But the most economically-minded legislator ought to be able to realize that this particular appropriation is really a war measure, and quite as vitally in the interests of TRUE economy—not the spigot-saving, bung-wasting sort—as any of the expenses incurred for food and fuel conservation and the checking of profiteers.

Food production is an industry which has many openings, in market gardening and orcharding, in bee-keeping, in dairying and the care of poultry and of sheep, which women are already filling here and there with marked success, and with great physical and mental benefit to themselves and to the race also. Success in these pursuits requires just the sort of technical and business training that the Agricultural College supplies to its male students, and it is a training that Massachusetts women, under the food shortage conditions of this great war, are for the first time ready in considerable numbers to grasp and improve.

President Butterfield should get his new department, and get it with the least possible delay. Woman's aid in rescuing the neglected and decadent agricultural resources of Massachusetts cannot be enlisted a moment too soon.

Lest We Forget

The decision just rendered by the Gas and Electric Light Commission saves Boston nearly a half million dollars in its public lighting bill.

We wonder how many citizens of Boston in their hearts thank the Boston AMERICAN for its aid in saving to the city nearly half a million dollars in its electric lighting bill. We wonder how many of the citizens of Boston even remember that nearly three years ago, in the midst of Ex-Mayor Curley's administration, a contract was signed by the Mayor with the Edison Light Company which the AMERICAN fought with all its might and main, at great expense, and which, with the aid of some valiant and honest members of the City Council, the AMERICAN succeeded in defeating. We wonder how many citizens even remember that, after the repudiation of this contract by the City Council, those who were opposed to it, led by the AMERICAN, succeeded in having it so reformed that the question of price which the people were to pay for their street lighting was left to be adjusted by the Gas and Electric Light Commission, an honorable and fearless public commission which does its duty all the time.

Now the Gas and Electric Light Commission has decided that the City of Boston shall pay almost a half a million dollars less for electric lighting during the term of the contract than was called for by the contract that was defeated through the instrumentality of the Boston AMERICAN and those members of the Council who stood by us.

How many people remember, either, the great and successful fight which the Boston AMERICAN and the Public Franchise League made, when the Boston AMERICAN was first established, to prevent the gas companies from putting fifteen millions of water into their stock—water on which the people of Boston would have been obliged to pay dividends ever after? We wonder how many people remember the fight which the AMERICAN made against the New Haven monopoly. We wonder how many investors remember the advice which the AMERICAN gave about the New Haven stock. We wonder how many of them realize that if they had heeded the warnings of the Boston AMERICAN about the New Haven financial condition they would have saved in the aggregate hundreds of millions of dollars.

Is there any man who reads the editorials of the Boston AMERICAN who remembers a single instance in which the Boston AMERICAN has been wrong in any of its hundreds of fights in the public service?

They say that republics and democracies are ungrateful. The AMERICAN never asks for gratitude. It does not need anybody's applause, but it does, for the sake of the public, like to have that appreciation of its good works which will earn for it consideration when it makes a statement or sounds a warning. The faithful watch-dog of the flock was useful only so long as the flock believed in him and trusted him. When they listened to the slanders of the wolf and ceased to trust the watch-dog they fell an easy prey to the wolf.

The AMERICAN asks for public appreciation when results show that it is right and that it has accomplished something for the public welfare, but asks it only in order that it may accomplish something more the next time and accomplish it more easily.

Once Overs

THE TRUTH AND THE WHOLE TRUTH.

Copyright, 1918, by International News Service.

When you are asked for the truth by those who have the right to know, do you take it seriously and endeavor to put things in their true light, or do you treat the matter as a joke and tell a few facts only, leaving matters as uncertain as before?

No serious minded person has any respect for a man who makes a few exceptions in his own mind and tells the rest aloud.

It might be well for some Americans to go back to the lesson of our country's father, George Washington, and the cherry tree, of which we learned in our youth.

When George Washington's father asked, "Who cut down that cherry tree?" George did not try to befog the matter by telling what he did with the wood.

He was direct and truthful, if tradition counts for anything, and his memory is revered by every good American.

He gave straight facts, in fewest words possible, and let the fallen cherry tree stand on the truth—as it has—ever since.

YOUR DUTY IS TO BUY MANY U. S. THRIFT STAMPS

By J. J. Mundy

If your city is falling behind other cities in purchasing War Savings Stamps and Certificates, is not some of the blame due to your failure to meet your share of what is required of you?

In settling the quota for each county $20 per capita was decided upon as the necessary proportion.

Have you purchased or are you planning to purchase $20 worth for yourself?

Are you simply negligent, or do you think the requests of the government means the other fellow and exempt you?

Or, why do you prefer other investments?

And why are you unwilling to make sacrifices in the curtailment of pleasures and comforts?

A Plain Duty

No loyal American would admit even to himself that any of the above excuses are true.

On the other hand, the government must have money to conduct the war.

It can be raised only by sale of stamps, bonds or direct taxation.

If by taxation it means that you will have to pay your proportionate share of expense and will get no financial return for the money.

The government wishes not to tax any more than is necessary, and so gives you an opportunity to invest your money and small savings at a good rate of interest and in this absolutely safe investment.

Every bond, every War Savings Certificate, every Thrift Stamp has the backing of the United States government, and the United States government has never failed to honor its stamps or its bonds.

Help Children

There are certain features which make each in itself a good investment.

While the War Savings Certificates are for the benefit of the one with more limited income, it does not bar the man with more money from helping to take up the share of the unfortunate one who cannot make ends meet at the best through illness or straitened circumstances.

If you are not helping your children to earn their quota of $5 worth per child you are not taking advantage of the most remarkable opportunity to teach thrift which has ever come to the child of any country.

What does your individual comfort and enjoyment amount to when you consider giving your government a fair deal?

Get into the greatest game the American or any other nation ever played to win the war and learn to save and invest at good interest all at the same time.

'Tis a Toilsome Trail

By W. P. Ordway

MOTIVES highest urge you onward,
Not the greed for gold!
For your city, State and nation
All that's best uphold.
When from youth to manhood turning
Choose a helpmate true,
So when faltering should shadows fall
She will comfort, strengthen you.

CHORUS:

'Tis a toilsome trail we're trudging,
Climbing up the heights of Ease.
Temptations oft beset us
While we rest beneath the trees.
But with courage calm and steadfast
Perseverance must prevail
Till we gain the summit of Resolve
And watch Life's twilight pale.

When Life's noontime is approaching,
Victory obtained,
Seek to lighten other's burdens
Ere your day has waned.
Keep the home fire ever burning
On each hill and vale;
With your bounty be most generous
Now that you have climbed the Trail.

TERRORLESS WOMEN IN LIFE THE SAFER

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

"WE will now study Satan in all his offices and characteristics," announced the Reverend McTavish after having already preached two solid hours to the long-suffering congregation of the Free Kirk at Drumtochty. And even Elspeth MacFayden, that model of church-going propriety, scraped her foot in disapproval at the prospect.

Yet the Reverend MacTavish need not have detained them more than a moment longer fully to cover his subject. He could have pronounced the single word, "Fear," and then have proceeded to his benediction with the assurance that he had uttered all there was to say.

Fear is Satan's middle name. He is born of it, and so is every variation of him that man has ever invented wherewith to vex himself. It is the greatest negative force in the universe, the primary cause of every evil under the sun, destructive alike to our moral, mental and physical fibre.

Girl Escaped

Somewhere in these United States, in Chicago to be exact, there is a girl blessed by the gods who has escaped its corrosive touch. Nor is it in her case a fearlessness engendered by ignorance. She is familiar with the city's ways, a reader of books and newspapers, open-eyed to what is called a knowledge of the world. Yet she faces life with a serene and steadfast confidence that it can bring her no harm.

I gather these details from a letter sent me by the girl's mother—a letter one would naturally suppose filled with joy and thanksgiving. On the contrary it breathes a tone of weak complaining.

"Dear Mrs. Woodrow," my correspondent writes, "please advise me what to say or do. I am the mother of a girl of seventeen, a sweet, cheerful child, bright and clever in every way.

"The odd thing about her, though, is that she refuses to believe that she can come to any harm. She has proven this under many circumstances. She reads the awful things reported from time to time in the newspapers, and knows as much about life as the ordinary woman of twenty-five; but so far as she herself is concerned, she seems to imagine that she is immune and that nothing or nobody will do her harm.

"Fortunately, she has never had any experiences to disabuse her mind of this notion, and I rather admire her faith; yet, at the same time, her utter lack of that caution which a girl of her age ought to show fills me with the gravest apprehensions. Please tell me what I must do in such a case."

The key-note of today for our daughters as well as for our sons is self-reliance. Intrepidity, and pluck with efficiency. They can't be little fluffy chickens—how current slang does play havoc with one's metaphors!—standing shivering and shrinking on the bank; they must plunge boldly into the swim and paddle for dear life or be left hopelessly behind.

Sons in Danger

Of course, if any mother really wants to make a coward out of her daughter it can no doubt be managed. Hippocrates or some other father of medicine prescribes, I believe, blood-letting behind the ears for maidens afflicted with a too venturesome temperament. The introduction of a mouse into the patient's bed is also to be recommended, or a band of thugs might be hired to jump out at her from dark corners and shout, "Boo!"

But perhaps the most efficacious method is simply to follow the plan of my correspondent, and shadow the daughter's days with worrying apprehensions and repeated warnings. For there is nothing in all this world so contagious as fear and panic.

All over this country today mothers by the thousands are sending their sons into certain and definite danger. Their hearts are torn with anxiety, yet not by word or expression would they seek to imbue those lads with their own fears and apprehensions. They even feel a justifiable pride in the dauntless courage of their boys. They would despise a different spirit.

Why should they wish their daughters to be less brave and fearless as women than their sons are as men?
